EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

SENATOR Zachariah Chandler leaves an estate valued at $1,800,000.

BOOMS rise and fall, but the barrel from "cipher alley" rolls on forever.

THE Democrats could not carry Maine fairly, so they are trying to steal it.

MR. JOHN HAY took Frederick H Seward's place as assistant Secretary of State last Saturday.

IT IS reported that Senator David Davis is lying seriously ill at Lenox, Mass. Grief over the death of his wife is the cause of his sickness.

HERE is something for the boys and girls to remember. Pennsylvania is 310 miles long and 160 miles wide. If children would ask their parents for this information, it is doubtful if one out of ten could answer at once correctly.

A BAD thing for Bayard. It is said that Tilden is not his friend, but his open enemy. Bayard is the most decent barbarian of them all, but what can he do without the barrel and the good will of the sage of cipher alley?

IF JIM BLAINE allows the Democratic Governor and council of Maine to steal the State away from him as they appear to be trying to do, contrary to all rules of honor, honesty or decency, he is not the Blaine we take him to be.

WE SHALL vote in this State next year on State ticket for two candidates, for Judge of Supreme Court and Auditor General. There will also be members of the Legislature to elect and 25 Senators, half the number of the Senate. There will be no Senator, however, to elect in this district.

A NEW insurrection has broken out in Cuba, and with it the government has recommenced the persecution of Americans. But a few days ago a wife of a citizen of New York was arrested as soon as she arrived at Santiago de Cuba. The attention of the State Department has been called to the outrage.

GOV. GARCELON, of Maine, says the Philadelphia Times, is reported at last advices as off to Portland to consult a legal friend as to the extent of his right to resist the order of court. What Governor Garcelon most needs just now is some friend who is big enough and bold enough to tell him what an honest man would do under the circumstances, and bid him do it.

MISS JOSEPHINE MEEKER has just given, by invitation of the Mayor and Town Trustees, a lecture on her Indian experiences, to a large audience in Greeley. She told her story simply and as if addressing a company of friends, and was so successful that she received an offer of $200 a week and her expenses to travel and speak on her capture and life among the Indians.

THERE is some prospect that the ground approaching the falls of Niagara will be purchased by the State of New York and Canadian government, and be open for travelers to see this greatest of America's natural wonders and not be robbed by a lot of sharpers as is now the case, the land on both sides being owned by private parties who make a "peep-show" of the falls. The estimated cost for this purchase to New York State is from $800,000 to $1,000,000.

GERMANY sends to the United States for some of its Christmas toys. Last week a New York firm shipped to Europe $12,000 worth of American toys, and such invoices have become quite common. Toy pianos will be very cheap this season. One New York firm have contracted for the delivery of 50,000 of these instruments by the 15th of December, and two other houses have sent orders nearly as large.

Up, Boys, and at Them.

The Presidential contest of 1880 bids fair to be the most exciting that has occured for a score of years. The danger which has threatened the Republic by the near success of the rebel Democracy has aroused the entire North to a realizing sense of the imminent danger which the Republic has so nearly escaped. The effort of the Democratic Congress to starve the Government and destroy the National credit, is followed by a complete revulsion all over the North, extinguishing the last hope of the Democracy for success in 1880. But while this is so, it will be necessary for every Republican to do his whole duty in the coming contest. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." In this conflict between civilization and barbarism, every true patriot should be eager to be at his post and wide awake for duty. In the late elections, while everywhere there were Republican gains, Centre county, permit us to say, did not do what she could. We made some gains, it is true, over our vote of one year ago, but we did not bring down the Democratic majority as much as we might have done by more earnest and thorough work. Let us all—each individual Republican—without waiting to see what our neighbor is going to do, determine that for ourselves we will do our whole duty.

The Republican chairman of the county committee for the next year, promises us one of the liveliest campaigns ever before inaugurated in old Centre. He should have the earnest, cordial support of every true Republican and patriot. He assures us that next year's contest is to be no "still hunt," but an earnest, aggressive fight from the beginning to the end. This is right. Our principles are right and progressive, and should be well understood. We have no cause to conceal anything: they appeal to the hearts and consciences of men. All our actions, therefore, should be bold and open as the day. A "still hunt" is a Democratic idea, and may do for a party without principles, whose deeds are evil, whose designs, if carried out, would be fatal to the best interests of the country. But the Republican party never reaches success by any such method. Let every Republican, therefore, try to convince his neighbor, who is a Democrat, of his error. One man won to the right side by conviction is worth a dozen votes captured by some trick or method known only to the professional politician on his questionable errand of the "still hunt." We are to have a glorious victory next year in the State and nation. Let the Republicans of Centre county do their part in this conflict and participate in its honors by redeeming our county from the evil control of Democracy. John I. Rankin, Esq., our chairman, will do his part, and the redemption of our county can be compassed, if every Republican will do as much and second his efforts for a great triumph.

We would like, also, to say a word to the Republican lawyers of Bellefonte, who are watching others so critically, and who think more work should be done. Gentlemen, let us see you, in the coming campaign, give some evidence of "the hope that is within you." In the past, some of you have been advocates of a "still hunt," not because you really believed such a course right or the best, but because you wanted to shirk the plain duty of holding meetings where you might be called upon to speak. One-half of this county has been neglected for the same reason; and indeed of late the whole county has been turned over to take just such a course as wind or tide might lead, with very little judicious direction from our most talented members of the Bellefonte bar. Just take hold in the coming year, and show that you have some interest in something besides making money—that you are willing to devote some time and money for the good of your country. Whenever there are honors to reap, you always stand in the front rank of applicants, and if you do not get the positions for yourselves, you often have a friend who does. It is doubly your duty, therefore, to lend your energies to the work, for you not only have the same incentives which call every patriot to duty, but are moved with a hope of future influence and renown. Now, dress up into line, gentlemen, and demonstrate to us the power of eloquence in shaping political events.

The Groans of the Wounded.

Under the heading, "Defeat and Disaster," our contemporary, the Watchman, in last week's issue, gives vent to its grief over the result of the fall elections in so lachrymose a manner that we fear we shall be compelled to make a new investment in pocket-handkerchiefs, our sympathetic sensibilities are so touched. It is indeed a sad state of affairs for our neighbor and his political friends, and we are truly sorry for them. His wailing is sufficiently touching to melt the hardest heart. Read this and weep with him, since he cannot be comforted:

"Now the prospect is dark indeed. * * * Where the Democracy had a right to expect a mighty victory that would have brought joy and gladness to the whole country, because it would have argued success in the Presidential contest of 1880, they have met with rout and disaster."

He virtually gives up the battle for 1880, which is wise, and if the rest of his party agree with him, they will perhaps conclude that it is useless to go to the expense and trouble of nominating a Presidential candidate, unless for form's sake. These are the Watchman's despairing words:

"To us it now looks doubtful whether the Democracy can unite and carry New York in 1880. Without that State they cannot elect a President. Such is the mournful position in which the Democratic party has been placed by the revengefulness and folly of John Kelly."

But what is the lesson which our neighbor derives from all this? our readers may ask. His comments upon the action of John Kelley, in New York, will strike people hereabouts with astonishment when they recollect the behavior of a certain Democratic newspaper and its editor, in this vicinity, on a recent occasion. Listen to our Meek and and tearful friend:

"What folly it is for political leaders to divide their forces in the face of the enemy. A military man who would do this would be denounced as a traitor, and court martialed. Are political leaders any the less to blame? From the sad result in New York, let the Democracy everywhere take warning, and hereafter put its foot down upon any man, no matter who he may be, who in the presence of danger will recklessly invite defeat and destruction as did John Kelly. Conventions are the place in which to settle differences, and no party can or ought to live a day that will bring its ante-convention troubles into the campaign and attempt to settle them with the foe in front. Such foolhardiness is exasperating, and fraught with imminent peril."

How would our neighbor like to take his own medicine—in other words, how would it suit him, in accordance with his advice, for his action in the late Congressional contest in this district, to be "denounced as a traitor and court-martialed?" For our part, his case and that of John Kelly seem, on general principles, precisely similar. We don't wish to add to the grief of our contemporary, but is it not best for him, when smarting from disaster, to be compelled to reflect that, according to his own expressed principles, he deserved punishment? Give up the Democratic party altogether, and you will be happier.

THOMAS GRAHAM, the hired murderer of Armstrong, has been sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment.

Getting Sensible.

As an evidence of the improved notion of the situation entertained by some people and papers in the barbarous States, we quote the following bit of sensible advice taken from the Constitution, a paper published at Atlanta, Georgia:

Our advice to the people of the South is that they turn their attention away from politics and towards the practical problem of development. * * * We have every advantage that nature can give, and we have but fairly started in the great work that is laid out for our hands to do. Let us then engage in the task of Georgia's development. Let us delve in the mines, sow and sow in our fields, build up our cities, make factories in which to spin and weave our products, encourage immigrants to come and make their homes with us. Let us do these things, and then fanaticism and prejudice shall not prevail against us. The utmost reach of hostility, the last audacity of sectional bitterness can not interfere with us in this great work. The election of a dozen Presidents can not displace one brick in the humblest of her factories, or rob one field of its fleecy harvest.

It may be that this advice is called forth by a feeling of despair, following upon the result of the late Northern elections. The people of the South now see the people of the North mean business, and intend to reap all the legitimate fruits of the late war; that the old Rebel doctrine of State Rights will not receive the sanction of the loyal part of the Nation. The North, in the late elections, has declared that this is a Nation, against the protest of the barbarous South, and such rebel sympathizing sheets and persons as our contemporary, the Watchman, its adherents and supporters. Well would it have been for the "solid South" if this advice had been given and followed long ago. Then its rich lands, now lying idle or poorly cultivated, would be covered with a wealth of farm products never dreamed of before; factories would have been built by Northern capital, giving employment to their own people, and calling in an industrial population from a distance, bringing civilization and the comforts of the Nineteenth Century to soften and tone down the barbarism of the natives; free schools would have been generously supported, thereby doing away with that large class found nowhere else, and contemptuously denominated "poor whites," who are poor indeed, and more ignorant, degraded and miserable than the poorest of the poor to be found in any of our Northern cities. Then, indeed, would an era of prosperity have dawned upon these barbarous States, the counterpart of which their most enlightened statesmen could have formed no conception. But instead of this, what have they done? Immigration from the North has been discouraged, the immigrant ostracised and finally driven away. A reign of terror has been kept up to intimidate the blacks, and all others that desired to exercise political freedom. Deeds of violence have been smiled upon, especially if the victim was a Republican, or of Northern birth. Law has been a dead letter; murderers shielded, even worse (if possible) elected to positions of importance and trust. Political adversaries have been hunted down and killed. Even women and little children have not been safe from the knife and pistol of the assassin, and when little children have been murdered, juries have been found in this barbarous section of our country to acquit the murderers. Honest debts are repudiated, and in fact everything done to hinder development or promote the financial interest of the States.

Is it any wonder that prosperity flies from them? that Northern men refuse to take their wives and innocent children there to run the risk of the assassin's knife or bullet? that Northern capital refuses to find investment in States and among people who seem to be determined to revert back to barbarism, to drive away every chance for financial prosperity, to revel in scenes of rapine, blood and murder, to call down the curse of an avenging God upon them? No! If the South would prosper, it must follow the advice given by the Constitution, as quoted above. Violence, rapine and murder must be suppressed; free schools, for whites as well as blacks, must be generously supported; Northern emigration must be welcomed, and when the Northern man arrives he must be allowed to think, vote and act, politically, as in his judgment is for the best, without the gentle, persuasive shot-gun argument. In such a line of action lies the only hope for the "solid South." The late elections have demonstrated that the Republican party can and will succeed at the next Presidential election; that it will make history for this republic for the next fifty years. This fact is the salvation of the South as well as the nation. Had the barbarous South become dominant in the government of the nation, progress would have been checked, civilization would have been overcome by barbarism, as it has before in the history of the world, as when the savage hordes of the north swooped down and extinguished the civilization of ancient Rome.

Republicans of Louisiana Ask Aid.

The late Republican victories seem to have had a very good effect upon some southerners, and especially in Louisiana. Some of the leading Democrats of that State, who are opposed to the repudiation policy of their party, are urging Secretary Sherman to come and make a few speeches upon the financial question. Some of the newspapers also urge prominent Republicans to come down and talk to the people, assuring the northern men that they will for once be on their good behavior and treat these speakers with hospitality. It is thought that the presence of prominent northern men would have considerable influence in the present frame of mind among that people to secure a fair election. Republicans of that State seem to have healed all differences and are working to secure what may be possible together with a favorable position in the Presidential election. The Republican State Committee have invited Senator Blaine, General Garfield and other prominent Republicans to come and help them, all expenses to be born by the committee. It is said by some prominent Democrats there, that serious dissatisfaction exists in some of the strongest Democratic parishes outside of New Orleans. It would seem by this to be plainly the duty of northern Republicans to give some attention to this State. Whenever the southern people show a disposition to hear the truth, good speakers should be sent to them. It is possible that the rebel Democracy of Louisiana, at least, (or the leaders who control the party) may have seen in the late elections the handwriting on the wall and the folly of longer contending against the policy of the only party that can bring true prosperity to the whole people. Perhaps the leading men have learned that turmoil and terrorism for rebel spite does not pay, and that their State must either become loyal and in harmony with the patriotic masses or sink into a primitive condition of desolation and barbarism. It is almost too much to hope for, that these people have come to their senses, but we hope and trust they have for their own good and the peace of the country. It is some improvement that Louisiana Democrats are willing to permit Republican speakers from the North to come among them to discuss political questions. We hail it as a sign of dawning civilization, but we should regard it as much more praiseworthy if they would extend the same courtesy to Republicans who live among them. While the Republican committee promise a respectful hearing for prominent Northern Republicans, they can obtain as much for themselves. If a man can be found in every parish to take the risk of acting as chairman of a Republican county meeting, he can do more effective work for the cause than a dozen speakers from the North. What they need is thorough organization, so that tickets can be distributed and voters brought to the polls. Northern speakers like Sherman, Blaine and Garfield could do much of course, but a thorough local canvas would reach every voter in the State.

The Bond-holders are happy, of course. The Republicans and a few demagogues of Virginia, to obtain a few offices, have led their negro partisans to disgrace their State and repudiate its obligations. To prevent the degradation, the Democracy of Virginia labored with great energy and devotion, but were unable to overcome the combinations. The Democratic Governor may prevent the passage of any outrageous act, but he cannot prevent the demagogues obtaining the offices, for which, with the help of the negroes, they sacrificed the public honor.—Centre Democrat.

Some one has said that "truth unadorned is adorned the best." If this be true, we cannot adorn a truth more beautifully than to pronounce the above from our contemporary a lie, out and out; and also to add that the editors of that sheet know it, and only give utterance to the falsehood for political effect. In the first place, they say "the bond holders are happy, of course." How grand and sublime is the thought that bond holders are happy when bonds are repudiated! No one but a Democratic editor, who knew he was talking to a set of readers who would never stop to think, would have thought of that. But, absurd as it is, it is as sensible and true as the balance; for they assert that the Republicans and negroes participated to disgrace the State and repudiate its obligations, in the face of the fact that the Republican party, solid, was opposed to repudiation, while the Democrats were divided upon the most important question, the biggest part being in favor of dishonoring the State obligations. Then, again, how foolish to lay this sin at the door of the Republican party, in view of the fact that Virginia is one of the barbarous States, and therefore strongly Democratic. Lives there a man with mind so dumb that he cannot comprehend that a State that casts a Democratic majority of 35,000 need not repudiate its debts if, as the Democrat asserts, "the Democracy of Virginia labored with great energy and devotion" to prevent such a consummation. Do not majorities rule (when they are Democratic) in barbarous Virginia? But the evidence that the Republican party in that State did all in its power to save the honor of the Commonwealth is stronger yet. In the last election the Republican party gained members of the Legislature, and every one of the Republican members is bitterly opposed to the repudiation scheme. Does this look as though this party had any hand in this disgrace? It is true the Democratic Governor may be a man of honor (if he was a Republican he would be sure to be); he may stand like a rock in favor of honesty, but if he does he will do it at the risk of displeasing the greater part of his constituency. If he was a Republican he could count for certain upon a constituency in favor of honest work, and actions in favor of doing just as we agree and paying our debts. If the Democratic party is honest, why is it that Democratic officials are always placed "in such a dilemma" whenever this financial question comes up? No! the Democratic party is not honest. "The Democracy of Virginia labored with great energy" not "to prevent the degradation," and as they were greatly in the majority, they succeeded; and this State, whose sons have always boasted about their honor and spoken proudly of their home as the "Mother of Presidents," has ranged itself alongside of the rest of the barbarous States in favor of repudiation, so that now the South is solidly opposed to paying its debts. We believe the Southern people have been led to this from spite; but they will find that it will not pay, any way they fix it to be dishonest. Capital has fled from them, and refuses now all Southern investments. It is enough to kill any enterprise to locate it down South. If the Democratic party is so honest, as our neighbor would make us believe, how is it that the Southern States, which are all Democratic, have also all repudiated their debts.

Now, the next time the Democrat wants to tell a lie, take our advice and make it reasonably sensible, or else even the Centre county Democrats will see through it and call it a little thin.

CONGRESS meets next Monday. We shall soon see what an effect the late Republican boom has had on the rebel brigadiers.

IN MEMORIAM.

Lines on the death of Bond Gray, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Gray, of Half Moon.

A beautiful snowflake, pure and white,
Come fluttering down to earth one day—
Pure as the down on the wings of light—
It kissed the damp earth, then passed away.

Beautiful dew-drop! a crystal gem
Sparkled bright on an emerald leaf,
Till a breeze swept by and shook the stem,
It rolled away like a star of grief.

Beautiful rose bud! waxen and pure,
Nestled close in a bower at morn;
Lovely and fair it swayed in the breeze;
At eve it was broken and gone.

Thus little Bond, a rosebud white,
Shed joy for a while in your home;
Made your hearts glad with his prattlingsweet,
Whose music will echo through years to come.

Then there came a dark and dreary day,
When the pattering feet were quiet and still,
And the busy hands were tired of play,
The little form grew cold and chill.

The sunny head, where sunbeams strayed,
On the pillow lay quiet at dawn.
Kind fingers closed the dear, bright eyes,
And an angel whispered, "the baby is gone."

Yes, gone from the hearts that prized it so;
Gone! the brightest hopes in his future hid,
Now all lay folded in robes of snow,
Broken buds 'neath the coffin lid.

Weep not, dear friends, o'er the casket where
Your hopes and lovely treasure lies.
Look through your tears to the portals fair,
To the fadeless home beyond the skies.

Away where no pain or blight can come,
Where all is pure as burnished gold,
Your cherubs are safe, both Mary and Bond.
Where a parting knell never is heard.

There, waiting in the land of the leal,
Your beautiful darlings will be,
With crowns, and harps, and robes of light
To bid a glad welcome to thee. H. M. C.

Our Story Teller.

Jenison's Bet.

When the widow Coe married Jason Carter she brought him no money at all, only a small, stony farm in Noppit, that had been her father's and two wild boys of 10 and 12 years' growth.

Jack and Dan were hard subjects for a stepfather to rule, and Jason Carter found his hands full. Naturally he was a quiet, gentle, persistent man; in his youth he ran away to sea, and for fifteen years he had been a common sailor, which had pretty well knocked the quiet out and the persistence into him. In this time he had learned to swear, as a matter of course, though he had been strictly brought up, and went to church and Sunday school always.

His father would have used the rod, but he also was spared the trouble, for both father and mother had died before Jason came back, and when he found they were gone he never went back to Tolland, but after he got tired of sea-going, took to peddling notions about the country, and at last married the widow Coe and settled down in Noppit.

He had stopped swearing long ago, for under dear old Father Taylor's teachings he had been converted between his last two voyages, and though profanity had become a habit with him, he had conquered it at last after years of patient endeavor, and now was so gentle and pleasant and pious that Phœbe Coe thought her last days would be her best days.

He had come to know the widow Coe from being an old shipmate with her brother, John Wires, who had also left seafaring, because he had injured a knee, and became too lame to climb rigging; so he set up a small shop in Boston, where he sold tobacco, twine and other odds and ends, but he had been married and had one son called Jenison.

The boy was about the age of widow Coe's youngest son, for her brother had married soon after she did, and when Jason Carter began the peddling business, John Wires had told him to stop when he went through to Scranton and see his sister. The children were small and their father was living when Jason first saw them, and they learned to look for "Uncle Jase" every fall with delight, for he always brought them marbles, tops, candy, strings, and made them bows and kites, sure passports to a boy's heart.

So, when their poor, drunken father died, and the widow found herself without a penny, she moved over to Noppit, to live with her father; and, when he died, too, leaving her all he had, the farm from which he scratched a scanty living, and she listened favorably to Jason Carter's proposal, for he was as tired of his wandering life as she was of her loneliness, and married him.

The boys were glad, for they loved him as they never loved their own father, and Jason was as good to them as if they were his own, though a certain thrill of emotion shook him when his baby daughter came that had never troubled that worn old heart in any emergency of Jack or Dan. But then Celia was a girl; of course that made it different.

Jason, when compared with his predecessor, was as mild and pleasant round the house as a spring day after a stormy winter. He became a useful and prominent member in the Noppit church, and never was heard to utter a profane or impatient word. Jack and Dan loved him as healthy boys love anything but mischief and meats, and Phœbe was entirely happy.

True, they were poor; Jason had a few hundred dollars laid by, but the Noppit farm was too sterile to produce crops enough to support the family, so he laid out his little capital, or part of it in a good breed of sheep, which found abundant living among mulleins, hard hack, and huckleberry bushes, and proved in due time a profitable investment.

For in those days, dogs, the curse of New England, were by no means common in the country; there was no reason for keeping them, and farmers had money and mutton instead of hydrophobia and horrors.

The wool sold well always and kept the family in socks, for Jason's wife could spin and knit with wonderful rapidity; the lambs he had not room to raise were sent to Hartford and sold to the butchers, and now and then a fat old wether went to the meat-man's cart in the shape of juicy quarters.

Jack and Dan had brought him up from lamb-hood, but he was no longer a lamb, and of his painstaking education only one trait stayed by him, a distinct and angry recollection of the rod that had not been spared in his early and somewhat stupid youth. To the day of Billy's death, a little stick shaken before anything, would send him "head on" at that luckless object, and the boys often amused themselves by climbing the pine rail fence and dangling a small switch full in Billy's sight against a big post; the result was sudden and severe to Billy, and he might have seriously injured himself if daddy (as the boys called Jason) had not found them at this sport one day and strictly forbidden it.

Cruelty to animals was one of the few things that roused his choler and made him imperative.

One summer Mrs. Carter received a letter from her brother asking her to take his boys for a few months; his wife was so feeble that she was going home to her father's with the baby and a young child, and Jenison could not go with her for want of room. Mr. Wires did not want him in the city with him, at a boarding house, but was willing to pay his board in Noppit; so he came.

Jenison Wires was a sharp, city-bred boy, with very little faith in anybody's goodness. His father was a pushing, money-making, profane man, and his mother a meek cipher; he himself, at the age of 14, could smoke and swear and talk sailor slang glibly, for he had run anywhere.

Mrs. Carter was troubled and disgusted to find such a boy on her hands. Jason considered that God in His wisdom had sent the boy there for his good, and resolved to pray for him as his own boys, and set him as good an example as he tried to set Jack and Dan, and to "deal with him," as he expressed it, "with a view to his eternal salvation."

The boys thought Jenison was wonderful. He knew so much, he had seen so many things: he had such a pocket-knife and such a swagger. But when his first oath came out Jack and Dan were startled.

"Look a-here," said Jack, "don't you let daddy hear no such talk as that. He'll turn you if he does."

"Whe-e-ew!" responded Jenison; "I ain't a boy; I guess I'll swear if I want to, for all of him. He ain't so pious himself, I bet, but what he rips out sometimes."

"He don't, he don't never!" the boys exclaimed in unison.

"H'm! I guess you don't hear him," the old fellow keeps shady before folks, but he used to swear like a Botany bay pirate; I've heard pa say so!"

The boys were shocked into momentary silence, but recovered themselves soon.

"And if he ever did he don't now," added reasonable Jack. "He's awful good; he's a professor; he prays in meeting and he don't never scold, nor nothin'. Scarce ever he licks a fellow; he did give Dan and me one whalin', but he oughter have, that's a fact. Dan, he told a thundern' lie and I backed him up, I tell ye, we was sore for one spell, after he found it out."

"Well, I know he used to swear on board ship. I've heard pa tell stories about him. They called him 'Still Jase,' to be sure, but when he got riled the fur flew. I'll bet my jack-knife I can make him swear inside next week."

"I'll bet my head you can't," retorted Dan.

"I don't know as I want your head for anything, but I'll bet my knife against that cake of maple sugar you've got in the closet that I'll set Uncle Jase a swearing before next week's over."

The boys were so sure that nothing could make daddy swear, and so pleased with their first bet of any importance, that they accepted the terms at once, and Jenison began to cudgel his brains for means of tripping up Jason Carter's tongue.

One day he slyly let down the bars into a field of clover, getting up before light to do it; the two cows, turned out of the barnyard to nip at the roadside until Dan or Jack could drive them to pasture, accepted the bait, entered the clover and rioted in its fragrant spheres, half killing themselves with greedy feeding. Jack found them half an hour after his chores were done in the condition that results to cows from eating green clover, and Uncle Jason worked over the poor creatures all day, without a word of impatience, though he said more than once.

"I wish I knew who let them bars down, I'd kinder like to say a word in season to him."

The pins were taken out of the ox-yoke and never found, egg shells strewed the mow, while the family never could have any eggs for their own use, the nests being always empty. The great gray cat's tail was singed to bareness and her ears snipped, but Uncle Jason never swore or lost temper. His scythesnath disappeared, but he borrowed another; his grindstone was soaped, the hay-cutter broken, hoes and rakes disappeared when wanted, and reappeared when useless, his razor was lost and hopelessly dulled when he found it, and a thousand petty annoyances heaped on him in vain. He only said to his wife:

"It does beat all, Phœbe, what's got inter this week; seems as if I never was so pested. It ain't human nature for things to happen so. Somebody's doin' on't, I sartainly feel to believe, but I declare for it I can't see into it a mite."

Jack and Dan began to triumph; only one day more of the week was available, and Jenison was put on his mettle, and plans laid accordingly.

They had prayers always before breakfast, and the weather was warm and the outer doors open wide this morning, and setting out just as his uncle laid down the Bible, under pretext of scaring an old hen away, the boy opened a little side gate into the lot where he had previously driven the old ram, and laying a train of salt to a big lump on the doorstep, retreated speedily to the kitchen and knelt down next to Mr. Carter, where he had left his chair.

Billy had seen the tin pail in Jenison's hand, and knew it meant salt; he followed the train surely to the door, and having begun to nibble the lump, heard an earnest and accustomed voice near by, and looked up into the kitchen door.

Jason was praying earnestly, and the rest had their eyes closed and heads bent—all but Jenison, who was watching Billy from under his arm. As he saw the ram look in he picked up a short switch from under his chair, and held it threatingly over his uncle's back. Billy gave one great leap across the door, charged Uncle Jason in the rear, and sent him sprawling.

"D——n that ram!" he roared in a voice of thunder.

Jack and Dan sprang up at once, drove Billy out and shut the door; but before they could speak their father was on his knees again, pouring out such earnest, humble confession of the sin he had been betrayed into, such tearful petition for pardon, such heartfelt contrition for a lapse that seemed to him dreadful, after long years of prayer and struggle, that hard and bad as Jenison Wires was, he could not bear it; it was the turning point in the boy's life; he got up from his knees and confessed the whole thing to his uncle and asked his forgiveness; and the other boys cried heartily.

Jason Carter never forgot that day; it was remembered with humility and thankfulness both; for years after Jenison told him with deep feeling that he had learned then and there to respect religion, and that is the first step toward desiring and obtaining it.

Jenison never claimed his bet, but when he went home gave Dan his knife for remembrance; and years after Deacon Jason Carter was dead and gone, his step-sons recalled with affection, reverence and amusement mingled, the only oath they ever heard him speak, and how it was brought about by Jenison's bet.—Sunday Afternoon.

Important Law.

The State Legislature passed an act last winter in relation to the building of bridges by county commissioners. A good deal of bridge building has been done of late in this county and for the benefit of all whom it may interest or concern we copy the law as below:—

A Supplement to the Act relative to Roads and Bridges, &c. SECTION 1. Be it enacted, That when a river, creek or rivulet, over which it may be necessary to erect a bridge, across a public highway, and the erection of such bridge requires more expense than it is reasonable that one or two adjoining townships should bear, and after a view has been ordered by the proper court as now provided by law, if it shall appear by the report of the viewers and by the approval of the court and grand jury, that such bridge is necessary and would be too expensive for such townships to bear, that whenever the County Commissioners do not deem it advisable to enter such bridge on record as a county bridge, but shall consider it proper to assist such township or townships in building the same, they are hereby authorized and empowered, from and out of the county funds, to either build such bridge or to furnish such townships the whole or part of the money necessary to build it, without entering such bridge on record as a county bridge.

SEC. 2. That the County Commissioners shall keep a record of all their proceedings in such cases, and such bridges shall be maintained, kept in repair and rebuilt, when necessary, by the respective township or townships, and the county shall in no event be liable for the same.

Yazoo is not going to be a nice place for Republicans to live in this year. Barksdale, the man who shot Dixon in the back, has been elected Sheriff. Under his rule the shooting of Republicans and negroes will not be meddled with. He is himself nominally under arrest, having been arrested and immediately admitted to bail in a ridiculously small sum soon after the "unpleasant affair" with Dixon. He may force his own trial to conviction and hang himself, but that is the only possibility of justice ever overtaking him.

Wade Hampton thought the Democratic defeat in Ohio "a blessing in disguise." He probably thinks the same about the result in New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and other States, but he must admit that the disguise is perfect.

Advantages of Liberal Feeding.

If the sheep breeder's faith in the efficacy of liberality in the matter of feeding begins to falter, a walk through the pens of a first-class fair, and conversation with a few of the more successful breeders, will serve to dispel such doubts as surely as the morning sun scatters the mists from the mountain side. Size, symmetry, vigor, precocity and prolificacy depend for their perfect development upon the well-filled granary and richly-clothed pasture of the husbandman as surely as these and other attributes of perfection are influenced by the breeder's art. Not alone in the sheep department is this apparent. It finds emphasis in every ring, from that of the draft horse to the pigeon coop. It is demanded not only by the novice, who sees nothing beyond the graceful lines of contour, but by the expert as well, who recognizes it as necessary to insure transmission of those virtues he seeks to reproduce and intensify in the off-spring. The experienced and successful breeder recognizes no better reason for withholding food from the animals under his care than he finds for restricting the members of his household in the same direction. Given the proper kind and variety of food, the quantity can safely be left to the instincts of the animal. If regularly supplied, no more will be taken than can be properly assimilated, while with a less quantity some detriment must ensue. "Blood will tell;" but its story will never be entirely complete unless the scenes of its triumphs be laid in proximity to productive pastures and well filled troughs.

While generous feeding is thus placed among the essentials to the highest success, the same attention to details—variety, quantity, quality, and the influence of these upon fleece and flesh—will be required that is bestowed upon what are commonly considered the higher arts of breeding. Pampering with incongrous food, restriction to limited quarters, the creation and encouragement of a vitiated appetite, the administering of suitable food at improper hours, or improper food at any time—in short, all errors of management—are as cautiously avoided by the successful breeder as would be the use of a ram possessing some objectionable peculiarity of form or fleece, even though the result of the mistakes in the one should not prove so permanently disastrous as those in the other direction. —National Live Stock Journal.

Rumored Elopement Of General Sickles' Daughter.

Much excitement has been aroused in social circles in New York by a report brought by persons who have just arrived from Europe to the effect that Miss Laura Sickles, daughter of General Daniel E. Sickles, had eloped from Paris with a married man on the eve of her proposed departure for this country with her father. Miss Sickles, who is 26 years of age, and is said to be highly accomplished, went with her father abroad when he was appointed Minister to Spain in 1869. It is said to have been the intention of General Sickles to sail with his daughter for this country upon Saturday four weeks ago. Passage had been engaged and every preparation made for the departure. Several days before the time arrived suspicion of the intended elopement, it is said, became excited, for the man with whom Miss Sickles finally eloped was then arrested. The charge is said to have been that of theft, he having had some of Sickles' jewelry in his possession. His name is McCarthy. He is a Southerner, and is said to be well known in this city. Through efforts of Minister Noves, M'Carthy was released on condition that he would leave the country. This he agreed to do, and upon the Friday night preceeding the day upon which Gen. Sickles intended to depart for this country M'Carthy left Paris for London, but took with him the General's daughter. This is the statement of persons who have just returned from Paris. It is alleged that M'Carthy and Miss Sickles are living in apartments in London, but that the former has changed his name. He is described as about 34 years of age, and fine looking. It is also affirmed that he is a man of bad reputation and known here as an adventurer. At the Army and Navy Club it was reported that General Sickles had lately become seriously ill in Paris. His friends here deny the story and say that he wrote recently that he was delayed by his daughter's illness.

The Democratic leaders are said to be agitated by fears that their majority in Congress may be lost through the secession of Congressman Felton and others who are said to sympathize with him. Congressman Speer, of Georgia, is one of those sympathizers, and Alexander Stephens is another. If the Greenback members should join these three, the Democratic majority would be completely wiped out. This seems to be a remote possibility. Neither Felton, Speer nor Stephens is more independent than he was last session. Mr. Stephens kicked hard against the party's policy then, but he voted pretty regularly with it most of the time. All three men are Democrats, first, last and all the time, and while they may give their party some slight annoyance now and then, they will be careful not to do it when such action will require them to vote in the interest of the Republican party.

A gentleman in Connecticut says that the butt ends of potatoes, and the kernels of corn from the butt ends of ears, each produced crops that were materially better than where the opposite course was pursued. In the case of the potatoes, the stalks from the butt ends were much the larger and more forward at the first hoeing. The increase in the corn was some twenty per cent. in favor of the butt-end kernels.

If the Democratic party in Maine is not about to commit a great fraud, it is at least doing its best to give the public that impression. A number of Republicans who have every reason to believe that they have been elected members of the Legislature, but who have also every reason to believe they are to be counted out, have applied to the Council of State officers for permission to see the returns. So far they have not succeeded in getting a look at them. The Council have been holding a little election for the Legislature in the secrecy of their own apartments, and have "tabulated" the returns—no doubt with a Democratic majority as the result. This table, they say, with charming simplicity, they do not regard as "part of the record," and therefore nobody, apparently, is to be allowed to see it. If it was a fair statement of results and gave the Democrats and Greenbackers an honest majority in the Legislature, it is hardly likely that they would withhold it from the public. It seems that under the laws of Maine there is a period of twenty days during which errors in election returns can be corrected, and it is the general belief there that the Council will prevent Republicans from seeing the election returns until this period has expired, when redress for wrong will be difficult, if not impossible. If this plot is carried out to the end it will be one of the most extraordinary frauds on record. Democrats who charge that the Louisiana Returning Board wrongfully deprived Mr. Tilden of the vote of that State are still compelled to admit that the Board exercised no powers which were not distinctly conferred upon it by the laws of Louisiana. But there is no authority in the laws of Maine for the action which, it is much to be feared, Governor Garcelon and his colleagues propose to themselves. The eyes of the country are upon you, gentlemen!—N. Y. Tribune.

Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, who nominated Blaine in the last Republican National Convention, has told his mind to The Indianapolis Journal. He is still for Blaine. "First of all, Blaine is certainly a competent man of affairs—a man who knows what to do at the time; and then he has acted in such a chivalric way ever since the Convention at Cincinnati those who opposed him most bitterly now have for him nothing but admiration." He is not afraid of a third term or a fourth, if it is absolutely necessary, but says "Grant can afford to regard the Presidency as a broken toy. It would add nothing to his fame if he were again elected, and would add nothing to the debt of gratitude which the people feel they owe him. He is regarded universally as the hero of the war, and I think it was really his genius that almost gave us the victory. I don't think his reputation can ever be as great in any direction as in the direction of war. He has made his reputation and has lived his great life. I regard him confessedly as the best soldier the Anglo-Saxon blood has produced. I don't know that it necessarily follows that because he is a great soldier he is great in other directions. Probably some of the greatest statesmen in the world would have made the worst soldiers. I don't think Grant has any enemies to punish, and I think that while he was President he certainly rewarded most of his friends." Of the Democratic candidates, he thinks Hendricks is ahead, and he adds: "My idea of Bayard is that he has not been good enough to be popular, or bad enough to be famous. As to General Hancock, you may set it down that the South will never lend their aid to elect a man who helped to put down the rebellion."

It is argued by Democratic oracles in Washington that the way for their party to succeed next year is to concentrate all their money and influence upon New York and Indiana, since these States, with the Solid South, will elect a President. They believe the South is sure anyway, which seems to be a safe conclusion. But if they bury Tilden, where will they get money to "concentrate?" Bayard says he has never spent any money to secure an office and never will. Hancock hasn't enough to constitute a drop in the bucket, for Indiana long ago gained the reputation of being a "perfect sink for money." Hendricks has no money, and Judge Field is not rich. Thus again the party is thrown back on the barrel as its only bulwark.

John Kelly insists that his fight against Robinson was really a fight against Tilden, and pronounces the latter dead beyond the hope of resuscitation. Mr. Kelly tells a correspondent of the Boston Herald that the Democratic nominee next year will be Bayard, Hancock or some other conservative candidate. Bayard, he says, can carry New York, and Tilden can't prevent it. He thinks the Democratic Convention will probably be held in Cincinnati, and expects, if two delegations are sent from New York, half of each will be admitted. He talks as if he expected to head one delegation in person, but when the time comes he may find himself able to be present only as his own representative.

Coffee-Pot Wallace's summer tour in search of election frauds has been a complete failure. One of his associate diggers says they found absolutely nothing worth reporting in any State save Rhode Island. In that little State they claim to have found some irregularities in the disfranchisement of foreign voters, and on this evidence they are going to build their whole report. They expect to produce a campaign document which will shake that State as it has not been shaken since the Dorr war. And yet the country is calm.

Political Notes.

The boom of prosperity is the most deadly one the Democratic party has to face.

Bayard isn't talking so much as he was. His silence just came in time to be too late to save him.

Bayard should avoid the danger of too great fluency. It has been the death of many stronger candidates than he is.

Whisper from Cipher Alley: "Be calm, brethren. No Presidential candidate to be nominated for six months yet."

The Solid South is the millstone which will drown the next Democratic Presidential candidate, whoever he may be.

Senator Blaine is likely to show himself enough of a "strong man" to strangle a healthy Democratic conspiracy in Maine.

Next to Mr. Tilden, General Butler is the quietest statesman in the country. Has he had politics enough, or is he nursing a little game?

Springer has not been heard from for several weeks. After so long a rest he will be in condition for a first-class racket when Congress meets.

Mr. Tilden is quoted as having made a kindly reference to John Kelley two years ago. He hasn't whispered anything of that kind recently.

Vigorous efforts are made to start that Hancock boom again, but that 58,000 Republican majority in Pennsylvania sits on it like a mountain on a mouse.

That Randolph boom in New Jersey doesn't budge an inch—probably because Joel Parker is anchored on one end of it and Governor McClellan on the other.

Ex Doorkeeper Fitzhugh, the bigger man than old Grant," has condescended to swing himself for Grant. That ought to give the boom a tremendous bounce ahead.

Where is Beck? He figured out Robinson's election in advance by 20,000 majority, and ought to have an interesting explanation of his discrepancy in the actual returns.

The recent death of Hon. Zachariah Chandler has caused general regret throughout the land. "Old Zach," as he was familiarly called, was one of the best stump speakers in the country.

Having pathetically appealed to "the whole country" and succeeded only in carrying Mississippi, Democrats know just how that gang of burglars felt who worked for seven straight hours to hammer a safe to pieces and secured fourteen cents.

Randall's friends are claiming for him the credit of having opposed with all his power the calling of that disastrous extra session. He is fully entitled to it, and if the party had followed his advice it would be in a far healthier condition to-day.

If Charles Francis Adams would rise up and swing that fraud brand around promiscuously a few times it might help him as Tilden's residuary legatee. If he could manage to leave it in a highly heated condition in a chair where Montgomery Blair was about to set down, he would afford the public a large amount of gratification.

The Grant boom has brought Brother Orvil to the surface again and restored him to his old dignity in the eyes of the hungry newspaper man in search of a victim to "interview." Brother Orvil takes kindly to the operation, and asserts with familiar emphasis that his brother is a modest man, and doesn't want to be President any more.

Where is Fernando Wood? He ran away to Europe from the extra session, leaving his unhappy party in Congress without a tail-holder, and unless he hastens back the new session will open with the party in the same unrestrained condition. It is doubtful if he can be induced to accept the post again, after the wrenching he suffered on the former occasion. In fact, the only competent tail-holder for the party is a Republican majority, and until that comes, next year, there is no help for it but to allow the old business of butting its head against the wall to go on.

Those amusing Democratic reformers of Yazoo did several exceedingly funny things on election day, just to keep the country "solid." In the Silver Creek precinct about 600 votes were cast for the Independent candidate, yet when the ballot-box was returned to Yazoo City for the count, it contained nothing but two pens and an inkstand. Thus a dreadful "race issue" was avoided by a perfectly delicious joke, and the sacred cause of "free elections" was upheld and glorified.

The genuine "Rebel yell" found voice in the Yazoo Democratic organ the morning after the county went "solid" again. There was a double column of stirring headlines in the boldest kind of type, containing sentiments like the following: "The Yazoo Democracy cannot be put down by traitors at home, nor Northern Radical scoundrels!" "The set of white men who attempt to lead the ignorance of the country against the intelligence, will always fail!" "The people sustained at the polls the action of the Democracy throughout the entire canvass!" That last crow of jubilation means simply that the people approved the murder of Dixon by electing his murderer Sheriff of the county. The worst of it is that the boast seems to be true.

PATENTS

OBTAINED for Inventors, in the United States, Canada, and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office, we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost, than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents and other valuable matter. We refer to the German-American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims; to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State. ESTRAY.—Came upon the premises of the subscriber, at Hannah Furnace, in Taylor township County, Pa., on or about the 25th day of October, 1879, TWO RED STEERS, one a Spring Calf with some white on the flank, and a piece off of left ear, the other is about one-and-a-half years old, with no marks. The owner is requested to come forward, prove property, pay damages and take the same away, or they will be disposed of according to law. 46-3t HENRY BECK.

ADJOURNED ORPHANS' COURT SALE. Will be exposed to public sale, on the premises, by order of the Orphans' Court of Centre Co., on Saturday, November 29, 1879, all that messuage or tract of land situated in Marion twp., Centre county, Pa., about one mile west of Jacksonville, bounded by lands of Wilson Beck, Daniel Condo, Joseph Long, heirs of Thomas Huston, and other lands of the estate of James A. McCalmont, dec'd., containing forty-eight acres, belonging to the estate of James A. McCalmont, dec'd., forty acres of which are in a high state of cultivation, and the balance is covered with thriving timber. To a person wanting a small farm, this is a desirable location, in a good neighborhood, convenient to churches, schools, mills, and within three miles of Howard, the nearest station on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad. There are 30 acres of wheat on the land, two-fifths of which will go to purchaser. Sale will begin at 1 P. M. of said day.

TERMS.—One-third of the purchase money to be paid upon confirmation of sale, one-third in one year thereafter and the balance in two years—the two latter payments to be secured by bond and mortgage upon the premises, with interest from date of confirmation of sale.

Additional Local Matters.

—A union meeting will be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Thanksgiving morning at nine o'clock. All are invited.

—The Presbyterian Sunday-school has a new and well-selected library. Join the school and read the books, boys and girls.

—A number of gentlemen from this place returned from Beach Creek last Saturday after a very successful hunt. Three deer were their trophies.

—Singing schools are now being organized. A very successful school is now conducted weekly in the basement of the Lutheran church by Mr. Wm. Beck.

—Queen Victoria has been buying flour in New York. The next order will be upon Sechler & Co. for groceries. Grocers to the Queen! How would that sound?

—A big box, full of useful and valuable articles, to the value of $173.50, has been sent by the Woman's Missionary Society to a worthy home missionary in Michigan.

—When the wind was "blowing great guns" on Sunday, the spire of the Methodist church was observed to sway to and fro, almost toppling to its fall. We hope it is secure.

—So great is the inquiry after Harry Green's cigars that we have procured a list of his brands for the benefit of our visitors. His "Bon-Bons" seem to lead in popularity.

—All the churches in town will combine their thanksgiving services to-morrow. The Methodist church will be the place of meeting, and Rev. A. D. Yocum will preach the sermon.

—England and Turkey are good friends again; but that is explained by the fact that it is about Thanksgiving time, and that Sechler keeps the best groceries and provisions in the world.

—What a grand thing it would be to have General Grant stop in Bellefonte on his way to Philadelphia! If his friends will only impress upon him what an unparalleled grocery establishment Sechler & Co. have, who knows but he would pay us a visit?

—John C. Miller & Co., are beginning to receive their new goods for the holiday season, and respectfully invite the citizens of Bellefonte and vicinity to call and see them. They will take great pleasure in showing goods whether you wish to purchase or not.

—We are credibly informed that the Street Committee of the Council have determined upon putting three lamps along Water street. Thus our fond dream is to be realized, and our expectation coming to pass! While our habitation continues to beat the farther end of that street we will not cease to sing the praises of our city fathers for this praiseworthy resolution.

—Half-moon hill has been cleared of loose rocks on its southern slope, and surrounded by a neat and strong stone fence, and fixed up generally. We are told that Mr. Bush intends converting the hill into a vineyard, and we may yet see the old hill-brow covered with climbing vines and clustering purple fruit, which will be such. O! such an irresistible attraction to our youthful marauders.

Personal Pencilings.

Miss Mary Bolinger, of Aaronsburg, will spend the winter in Bellefonte.

Messrs. John and Israel Stover, now of Michigan, are visiting in their old homes in Aaronsburg.

Miss Lida Johnston has been confined to her home lately, on account of a severe attack of erysipelas in the face.

Wm. Guie, the proprietor a short time ago of the Bellefonte paper mill, was in town last Wednesday. He looks well and prosperous.

Prof. Miles Wingate, whom we noticed last week as about to come to Bellefonte, is now teaching Aaronsburg youngsters how to wield the pen.

Superintendent Wm. A. Baldwin, of the P. & E. rail road, with the civil engineer of the road, Mr. A. B. Starr, were in town last Saturday in their special car, upon some private business.

Mr. Chas. Hewes, the school-teacher at Potters Mills, narrowly escaped being shot lately, by some unknown party. Mr. Hewes must have some dangerous rivals in that neighborhood.

Rev. A. D. Yocum is now revelling in bachelordom once more. He and his little son, Duncan, are keeping house while Mrs. Yocum makes a visit to Baltimore, with her little girls.

Mr. John Campbell, one of our best carpenters, will, after the present court, locate in Philipsburg. Philipsburg will gain a first-class mechanic, and our town will lose a good citizen.

Master Harvey Wetzel, a younger brother of our efficient assistant principal of the public school, had the misfortune lately to cut his foot so badly with an ax, that he will be disabled for some time.

Ira C. Mitchell, Esq., was in town last week. When we saw him last he was inquiring after four words in the English language ending in cion. He was too much for the pedagogue he buttonholed on the subject.

Signor Phillippi, our noted gymnast, balloonist and stand on the head, left us on Monday with the intention of making his abode in Reading. He gave Mr. Steve Pasons some lung exercise on Saturday, employing that gentleman to sell his household wares at public outcry.

Miss Clara V. Lyon and her aunt, Mrs. Pugh, have gone to Pittsburgh. Mrs. Pugh will return shortly, but Miss Lyon desires to enter the school of design in that city. We are glad that Mr. Lyon recognizes the unusually fine abilities of his daughter, and gives her such opportunities of improving them. He will be amply repaid in seeing her first and foremost in culture among her associates. Would that other fathers were so mindful of their children's best interests, and that all our young ladies were as ready to seize upon every opportunity offered for intellectual advancement.

—Next Friday evening the Cresson literary society at the State College will throw open its hall for the public to witness an unusual literary exercise, a mock court. All the legal forms appertaining to a suit for breach of promise, which will be the cause before the court, will be prepared. We have been given the principal points of the case, by one of the attorneys, and it promises to be of rare interest. All young ladies who are interested in learning to what extent they may carry a flirtation when engaged, without giving their intended justifiable cause for cancelling the contract—such young maidens we think would do well to attend. Free to all and lots of "fellers."

MR. EDITOR:—For the information of the treasurer and members of the Y. M. C. A., whose memory appears to fail them on some points, I would state that the $25.00, which the treasurer submitted in his report as received from some Temperance Society whose name they did not remember, that the above sum was paid them by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union for the privilege of using their rooms for holding prayer meetings and other temperance meetings. You should have given proper credit, I believe. X.

—Postmaster Johnston reported, as the result of the week's count ordered by the Department, that over 8,000 letters and papers were received for mailing at this post-office during the six days given for enumeration. Five hundred were the average daily number of letters sent from here, but this number was at least a third smaller than during any previous week for some time.

Anniversary Ball and Supper.

SNOW SHOE, PA., Nov. 17, 1879.—Snow Shoe City Council No. 274, O. of U. A. M., held their 7th anniversary ball and supper on Friday eve last, in their hall in this city. Although the the rain fell in torrents there was quite a great number present. At 7 p. m., the sound of music reached our ears and soon the young folks were tripping the light fantastic. Everything passed off pleasantly. The hour of 10 o'clock having arrived we were invited to the council chamber to partake of refreshments, which our good women had prepared in abundance. Of course we did justice to the good things. We then returned to the ball room and the dancing was resumed, which was kept up until 3 a. m., when, feeling somewhat fatigued, we concluded to bring matters to a close. A free and last dance was announced, after which we dispersed, all well pleased with the evening's entertainment. The committee met this evening as per call of chairman, when the following resolutions were offered and unanimously approved.

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be and are hereby tendered Messrs. Somerville, Crider & Co., for use of dishes.

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be and are hereby tendered John G. Uzzel for use of organ.

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be and are hereby tendered our young friend George Uzzel, who so ably presided at organ, lending valuable assistance to the dance without charge.

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be and are hereby tendered all the good people of this place for valuable donations and in preparing supper. Also for good order observed.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolution be sent to the DEMOCRATIC WATCHMAN and Bellefonte Republican for publication.

In conclusion, we would return a vote of thanks to the parties who carried off provision from the hall, if they return the same. If they fail to do so, we shall give their names publicity, as they are known. Very truly,

COMMITTEE.

—It devolves upon us to record a very sad accident that occurred yesterday morning in Tyrone. William Plummer, Esq., for years a tried and trusted employee of the Penna. railroad, and of late holding the position of night watchman at the depot in Tyrone, was struck by the mail express early on Tuesday morning, and instantly killed. Mr. Plummer was the father of Scott and Jacob Plummer, Esqs., both of whom are well known to our community, the former holding the position of conductor on this road, and the latter that of baggage-master. Scott Plummer had charge of the early train that passed through here on the morning of the accident, though at that time he had heard the painful news, and was while performing his duties going on to receive the mangled remains of his father. All of Mr. Plummer's many friends in this place deeply sympathize with him in this sad affliction.

—Rev. John Hewitt, who we mentioned two weeks since as having gone to Colorado, has met with a very unfortunate accident, which we fear will seriously mar the pleasure of his journey. He writes to Major Reynolds from Wakefield, Kansas, that his brother's horse ran away while he and his brother were out riding, and he was thrown out, breaking his ankle. Mr. Hewitt is now confined to his bed, but the physician thinks he will be able to be out in ten days, though he may be compelled to makes use of crutches. We hope the reverend gentleman will have no more so unpleasant experiences.

—We have word from an old Milesburger, Mr. C. S. Murphy, of the death of Mr. Levi Askey, aged twenty-six years. This mournful event took place in Dickinson Co. Kas., on the 18th inst., the cause of Mr. Askey's death being consumption. The deceased went two years ago from this county to Kansas, taking with him his young wife, a daughter of Mr. Jacob Leathers, who resides near Curtin's Iron Works.

—If our borough rulers would only see their way clear to give that lock-up a coat of paint, paper it inside, fit it up with cushioned seats, carpet, and comfortable parlor stove, it would be a great source of heart content to the loungers of Bush-st. Maybe he thinks of taking up his residence there. Convenient location you know.

—That Indian of A. J. Crase was too much for him Sunday. In attempting to move it, it tumbled over on that fine new show-case, breaking it to flinders. He has decorated the outside of his store since, which makes up in a measure for his loss.

—It is said that Ringgold and Bannigardner went to Wallaceton when they took French Irvin, of the sheriff here, and in that place he was fitted out by kind friends who might have had him arrested, had the circumstances been different.

Burnt Cork.

Baird's New Orleans Minstrels played last Thursday evening before a full house, and gave the most entire satisfaction—something which very pleasantly disappointed many who went, for our past experiences in this line have not been of the best. Even the orchestra music was of a very superior character, which has not been the case with any minstrel troupe that has visited this town of late years. Another notable point was that the entire programme was played without a single omission, and every part was of the most mirth-producing character.

The new departure, originated by Messrs. Mack and Conway, of eight clog dancers was well received by the audience, and made a fine impression. Every one of the eight end men proved themselves veritable artists. The tableau scenes were wondrously well executed, the posings presenting a beautiful and artistic effect. Dixon the ventriloquist, entertained the people much, who were particularly interested in his difficult and perfect imitation of the sound of wood-sawing. "No Pinafore" kept the people in a continuous burst of laughter, and fitly clapped the climax of uproarious fun. That to which we desire to give especial prominence is the high-toned morale of the company which should recommend it more than anything else. Not a word was spoken that would not bear repetition in any society. Off the stage their behavior did them credit, and from all we can learn Mr. Baird and his whole company "did the square thing all around," and we don't think they lost anything by it.

If this company ever again favors us with a visit, they will receive a warm welcome and will be greeted by a tremendous audience.

—Pennsylvanians have an interest in the battle of Gettysburg, greater perhaps, than in any battle of the war. It was fought on their own soil, participated in largely by their own men and on its issue hung the fate of the war. We all desire to learn all we can about this great battle and will gladly avail ourselves of every opportunity to increase our stock of information about it. The man who knows probably more than any other living person about the battle is Capt. John B. Bachelder, who has collected such a wonderful mass of material about this battle, that eminent soldiers north and south are exerting their influence to have it published by the government. Our G. A. R. Post, has been successful in securing this gentleman to deliver a lecture upon the incidents of the battle, and we congratulate ourselves that we are to have the opportunity of listening to the contents of the Captain's book in advance of its publication. It is our opinion that many of our citizens will not pass by the opportunity of hearing this "walking and talking encyclopædia" of the battle of Gettysburg.

—On the evening of election day, a little knot of 27 gentlemen were gathered in Justice Rankin's office waiting to hear the returns of the elections, and it was proposed by some one that a ballot be taken for the Presidential nominee of 1880, each one voting for his choice. The result was, Blaine, 13, Grant 13, and E. B. Washburne 1. Here is a "straw" for next year's wind.

—The twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Haag, of Pleasant Gap, is spoken of all around as a success. Four hundred persons were in attendance, good music and abundance of equally good eatables were provided, and 21 handsome presents offered the couple, who for a quarter-century have lived together in happy union.

—Prof. Tice in his prophecy about the meteoric display on the 13th inst., was, as usual, a little "off;" the shooters didn't put in an appearance. Now if we were in the prophesying business, we would try to get upon a little surer line of communication with the regions above. We could beat the professor, anyhow, if we only just tried once.

—With tremendous gusto winter wheeled into line last Thursday night, and dealt the gentle spirit of the lingering Indian summer such a blow as smote it to the earth to rise no more this year. Overcoats and wraps at once became popular, and the frost king concluded that his "boom" was the most successful of the season.

—A. R. Agnew has gone into the picture business. He now hangs out at his gallery on Temperance that possesses unrivalled attractions. Mr. Agnew has never minded to us whether or not he was going to turn a presentation of himself

—There was no preaching in the Episcopal church on Sunday.

—Did you ever? No, I never! What, never? Well, hardly ever! saw such a fine stock of groceries and fancy fruits, confectionary, tobacco and cigars as is kept by Sechler & Co., in Bush House block, and they sell so cheap that every one can afford to buy. If you are not convinced, go to their store and see for yourselves, where you will find a tentive and obliging clerks, and see one of the neatest stores to be found in the State. It is worth something to feel certain that what you buy is pure and good. All customers can feel confident of this at Sechler's, for they will not sell impure or damaged goods of any kind or description.

FARMERS GET FOOLED when they buy Butter Powders and colored salts, and big bottles of cheap stuff, if they expect to get as good a Butter Color as the Perfected Butter Color made by Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. The others have tried to imitate the excellence of this, the original color, but have wholly failed. Farmers should use only the "Perfected." Sold by druggists and merchants generally.

Keep your bowels and kidneys in healthy state by the use of Kidney-Wort.

"MY BACK ACHES SO, and I feel miserable," said a hard-working man. The doctor questioned him and found that he had been habitually costive for years, that now his kidneys were disordered and his whole system deranged. Kidney-Wort was recommended and faithfully taken and in a short time every trouble was removed. The cleansing and tonic power of this medicine on the bowels and kidneys is wonderful.

THE LAST CHANCE.—As The Independent of New York will withdraw all its premium offers Dec. 31st, 1879, only a short time remains in which any one can get a Worcester's Unabridged Pictorial Quarto Dictionary (retail price $10) and three years' subscription to The Independent for $9, the price of the subscription alone.

The Independent claims to be the largest, ablest, and best religious newspaper in the world. It has bought the copyright of Rev. Joseph Cook's famous Boston Monday Lectures and is publishing one every week. To tell all of its good things would occupy too much space. See advertisement in this paper.

—The next annual session of the Central Pennsylvania Conference, M. E. Church, will meet in Altoona, March 10th, 1880. Bishop Gilbert Haven will preside.

—Whatever may be the ups and downs of political success, our country will stand firm, so long as Centre county people make Sechler & Co., their depot of family supplies.

WASHINGTON.

Special Correspondent.

Nov. 20, 1879.

The ragged and forlorn Greenbackers have called a National conference here for January 8th, to confer on the poverty of their situation and as to holding a National Convention to nominate candidates for President and Vice President. They will have a serious funeral of it—if they review the mischief they have attempted and push that which they contemplate. One of the bigest jobs they have undertaken in company with the reckless Democrats is the stealing of several States so as to control the elections next year. Their first victim on the programme is Maine, where they have the State officers, and propose to refuse certificates to enough Republicans to change the complexion of the Legislature. As the Republicans have 28 majority, this is a pretty big job; but it is feared that they will stand at nothing short of actual violence, such as their brethren in the South inflict. It will be remembered that Ben. Butler has threatened to get two or two States next year for the third party so as to send the election to Congress and defeat the Republican choice by some jugglery, but it will be a tougher job than ever he undertook before, and this Maine outrage, if it shall be perfected, will make enough Republican votes to assure us a cleaner sweep in 1880 than ever a party had before.

Gen. Garfield is reported to be still gaining rapidly in the Ohio Senatorial race. His popularity among public men, and especially in Congress, is such that could they vote on the question he would be returned by a large majority. No public man has a more solid reputation than General Garfield.

Yesterday was a gala day here. The army of the Cumberland had its annual reunion, and took the occasion to unveil the fine statue they have erected to the memory of Gen. Thomas. The soldiers came here in force, and so were the citizens from all quarters. The parade was one well worthy of remembrance, and altogether the affair passed off well. The statue is an equestrian one, and has one of the best locations in the city—on what has been known as the 14th street Circle. It will be known as the Thomas Circle hereafter.

Congressman Frye, of Maine, denies that the committee on Rules were unanimous in reporting the new code. He denounces it as an arbitrary expedient of rebel brigadiers. Very likely they are forging chains for themselves, as it is pretty certain they will be the minority in the next Congress.

It seems to be generally believed that Gen. Grant will accept the Presidency of the Panama Canal Company, and control the great international work contemplated by it. Everybody will be glad if that turns out to be true, for it will be an honorable position for our great soldier, and his name will be a guarantee that the work is a genuine one, and likely to succeed.

A large band of colored refugees have just passed through here from North Carolina to the North, where they have employment engaged for them. They flee from the outrageous system of oppression to which the Confederates subject them, and say that there are thousands preparing to follow them.

PHIL.

THE Chilians, not content with having destroyed the Peruvian navy, have determined to invade Peru with a land force and have effected a landing at Pisagua. The Chilian forces are estimated at 12,000 men, well armed and thoroughly disciplined, the flower of the Chilian army. The allied force of Peru and Bolivia number 9,000, and if properly handled in the difficult country back of Inique, whither the Chilians are advancing, they should beat off the invaders. The Chilians, who, at last accounts, had followed the retiring forces of the enemy, had reached Santa Catulina, a march of a day and a half from the ally's position. The allies are under the command of General Buendia, who has seen some service. The Chilian commander-in-chief, General Escula, is a talented officer. Lima has been declared under martial law, all citizens capable of bearing arms, must enroll themselves in the line of the national guard regiment. It is thought that the main object of Chili is the nitrate of Tarapaca, though it is possible that later on her attention may be turned to the Guano deposit in the same latitude.

AS IT becomes evident that the vigilance of Senator Blaine and other Republican leaders in Maine will thwart the Democratic plans for stealing the government of the State, the whole Democratic press remarks with a beautiful assumption of innocence: "Why, bless your hearts, we didn't intend to do anything of the kind. What are you making such a fuss about?" Like a professional burglar, who is caught in a suspicious attitude near a burst safe with a jimmy in his coat-tail pocket, they are amazed that anybody should suspect them of felonious intent. Also like the burglar, they have no idea how the jimmy got into their pockets.

WOMEN'S tastes vary, but there is one and the same spirit of restless curiosity. In the East collections of artistic and comical advertising cards are the order of the day, and when a lady has gathered together 500 or 1,000, she has materials for a scrap-book that will delight the children. In a western city a lady makes it a rule to entertain every public lecturer who has an engagement there, and has amused herself by arranging a collection of tooth-brushes which they have left behind in her house.

DRUNKENNESS is not tolerated among the Mormons in Salt Lake City, which contains a population of over 30,000 souls. There are no policemen and no paupers there. Dr. Cox, who recently visited that place, asked a prominent Mormon how they got along without them, and received the reply: "Why our rulers say a man who sells liquor must pay $1,000 in order to the privilege of selling liquor, and having no drunkenness we have no need of policemen."

Valuable Timber Land

—AT—

Private Sale!

The undersigned, trustee appointed by the creditors of John Curtin, to receive the title to and make sale of certain timber lands in the county of Centre, will receive sealed bids for the purchase thereof, at the office of Beaver & Gephart, BELLEFONTE, Pa., up to, and including the 28th day of November, inst. The lands include

3,451 Acres and 113 Perches,

Lying on Marsh Creek, and its tributaries, in the townships of Boggs, Curtin and Howard, in Centre county, and are

HEAVILY TIMBERED

With a good quality of

White Pine, White Oak & Rock Oak

Timber, variously estimated at from

15 MILLIONS TO 35 MILLIONS FEET,

And are situate within two miles of the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad at Howard. All tops and refuse can be utilized in the

MANUFACTURE OF CHARCOAL,

For which there is an active demand in the immediate neighborhood. Much of the land when cleared will

MAKE GOOD FARMS,

And can be disposed of at from $5 to $15 per acre. This is believed to be the largest and best tract of Oak Timber in Centre county.

The bids will be made either all cash when deed is delivered; or, one-half in cash and the balance in one year with interest; or, one-third in cash, and the balance in two equal annual payments, with interest—time payments to be properly secured.

The bids will be opened at LOCK HAVEN, PA., on Saturday, the 29th day of November, inst., and will be subject to the approval of the creditors, for whom the trustee acts. The right to reject all bids being expressly reserved.

A Remarkable Clubbing Offer.

By special arrangement the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN and the Rural New Yorker (which is a 16-page illustrated agricultural weekly) will BOTH be sent to one address, one year, for ONLY $2.80. Every subscriber who accepts this offer will also receive a package of the plants and seeds of the free, which itself is valued at $3.50! By this great offer we have secured to our readers two of the best papers, and a selection of valuable seeds, total value, $6.30, which we agree to send for the remarkably low price named above. A fully illustrated description of the seeds and plants will be sent to all who apply for a sample copy of the Rural New Yorker, New York City. Below we give a condensed list of the seeds and plants that are offered:

First. "The Cuthbert Raspberry"—TWO plants. E. P. Roe says of it: "As far as I can now judge, it seems to me the most valuable Raspberry, and I have planted five times as many of this variety as of all others put together."

Judge Parry says: "The Cuthbert is far ahead of all the others in abundance of fruit, size of berry and hardiness."

T. S. Force says: "No Raspberry can be more highly recommended for general purposes."

Charles Downing says: "I consider it the most promising Raspberry before the public, as far as tested."

J. T. Lovett says: "It is the perfect Raspberry."

It is at once the highest-flavored, largest, most prolific and HARDY variety of Red Raspberry known.

Second. "The Telephone Pea." The new English Pea. At present held in England at $30 per bushel at wholesale.

Third. "Mold's Ennobled Oats." Mr. Mold, of England, is the introducer of this variety. On the farm of the Rural New Yorker it yielded, last season, at the rate of 86 bushels per acre.

Fourth. "Abies Sibirica," one of the hardiest and most beautiful evergreens known.

Fifth. Seeds of Magnolias, Soulangeana, Lenuei, Acuminata, Fraseri, Glauca and Umbrella.

Sixth. Seed from Seedlings of the beautiful and new Iris Kæmpferi. Hardy.

Seventh. Seeds of the splendid Pipe Vine, Aristolochia Sipho. Hardy.

Eighth. Seed of the Man-Root, Ipomœa leptophylla. Hardy.

Ninth. Seeds of Bebbs New Aquilegias—bearing the largest flowers of any of the Columbines.

Tenth. "Hybrid Penistemons." New, beautiful, hardy.

N. B.—The above rare collections of seeds are estimated to be worth over $3.50. Many of them cannot at present be purchased. 11-45-tf

How to Create a Profitable Diary.

The dairy business like every other business has sustained a rude shock within the last three years, and poor butter has suffered a fatal wound, it is to be honed, from which it will never recover. Good butter, (for we do not propose to consider a cheese dairy in this article), will always be in demand, and will not fail to sell for remunerative prices. The local market created by every town will absorb a large quantity of this class of butter, especially in the winter, late fall and early spring months, and pay a handsome price for it.

In order to establish a good, paying dairy three fundamental principles must be kept in view. First, a stock of good butter cows must be collected. Second, the proper appliances for preserving milk and cream, and the butter until marketed, must be provided. Third, a proper knowledge of the business of preparing the cream, manufacturing and dressing the butter.

The first of these requisites, profitable butter cows, can only be obtained by actual tests. The marks and points given by experts as rules for judging the milking qualities of the cow will not do to rely upon. Every cow should be proven by an actual test of her milk; not only in the quantity of cream it will raise, but the quality of of butter the cream will make. A little time consumed in placing each cows' milk in a glass jar and noting the quantity of cream per gallon will soon furnish this knowledge accurately. The next point is to test the quality of the cream as a butter producer, and here it will be discovered that there is a wide difference in the produce of cows. The cream of some cows will make fine, golden butter of beautiful grain and golden flavor, as compared with that of other cows; and here it is that the little Jerseys are so superior. But as good butter cows may be found among common stock and grades as anywhere, if they are selected by the test of actual experiment. If a cow on trial lacks in butter producing qualities, she should be disposed of at once, no matter what she may be as a deep milker and a fine appearing animal. When the butter cow has once been found keep her by all means, till she fails of old age. She will be a more profitable cow at 12 years old than many a high-priced, high-bred animal of three or four, which commands a fancy price. There is many a fine appearing dairy cow that eats her head off, so to speak, or what would, perhaps, be nearer the literal truth, eats her owner's head off, from the neglect on his part to submit her milk to the test of experiment.

After a cow has reached her maturity her milk is richer than during the period of growth, hence cows that have attained the age of six or seven years are more profitable for butter than younger animals. It requires years of careful experiment and selection to build up a butter dairy that will give the best returns, and such a dairy once established, with a skilled butter maker in charge is one of the most profitable institutions on the farm, if a home market can be found to consume the product, this can be made where the dairy is located within easy distance of towns. The care of the cows and the care of the cream are very essential matters to insure the highest degree of success. The ingenuity of inventors is producing approved methods of preserving milk and cream from taint of surrounding articles that give off odor, which is injurious to the butter, if the air is allowed to come in contact with the milk or cream, and every first-class butter establishment will have in the future to be supplied with one of these methods.

The Dutch are famous for their dairy produce, and the scrupulous care which they bestow upon their cows might be imitated with profit by Americans, in many respects. A recent writer describing the cow stables of the Hollanders says:

"They have little rings in the ceilings, with cords passing through them, by which the cows' tails are held up to keep them from getting dirty. The stable was carpeted, and had plants and flowers in it. The floor of the stables was of small bricks. At the back of the stalls was a trough of masonary about eight inches wide and nine inches deep, with a ditch or resevoir of water at one end. As soon as the trench was dirty they turned on the water, all the manure, etc., was carried out to a covered vat, whence it could be removed. The cows were as clean if not cleaner than your horses. All the fastenings they have is a little cord around the necks, and they are so gentle and quiet that they don't require anything stronger. They use brass milk pails instead of wood or tin ones."—Ex.

President Hayes is one of the most sanguine Republicans in the country concerning the prospect for 1880. He said to the Washington correspondent of The Cincinnati Commercial recently that he considered all the doubtful States safely Republican. Even Indiana, he is confident, would vote to-day for the Republican ticket by from 12,000 to 15,000 majority. The State lies side by side with Ohio, and the same influences and arguments which carried one would carry the other. If the recent election in New York had been for President, he thinks the Republican majority would have been 20,000. It is the belief of New York Republicans that their majority next year will be double that figure.

This is the time when the wise Presidential candidate keepeth his mouth shut.

Night Soil.

Waldo's "barl" has stirred up quite a commotion among the readers of The Farmer. This is well. When men begin to agitate a subject, good will be accomplished. Quite a number of requests have come to us, within the past week, for analyses of human excrements, compared with those of farm animals. One says, "I believe in the 'petty economies' that 'Sam' affects to despise, whenever such economies will pay, and to determine this matter, we must know the constitutents of the different materials spoken of." This is good doctrine, and every man, who uses fertilizers at all, will subscribe to it. Another reader says, "Night soil may be a good fertilizer, but it is too nasty to handle." Waldo's strong argument, perhaps, is the sanitary one. By using dry earth, night soil becomes inodorous and innocuous, and can be handled without holding the nose, unless one is so extremely delicate and dainty as to unfit him for farming. Having the closet arranged, then, so that dry earth can be used conveniently, for the sake of health and cleanliness, no one will deny that it will pay to transfer the material to the general manure heap, say twice a year.

We have looked up this subject, among all the authorities we could command, and we begin to think the value of night soil has been overestimated. Harris gives the following table showing the amount of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash in one ton of fresh human excrement and one ton of average fresh mixed excrement from horses, cattle, sheep and swine:

| Solids. | Nitrogen. | Phos. Acid. | Potash. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Human | 20.0 lbs. | 21.8 lbs. | 5.0 lbs. |
| Animal | 9.4 " | 6.2 " | 4.3 " |
| Liquids. | Nitrogen. | Phos. Acid. | Potash. |
| Human | 12.0 lbs. | 3.7 lbs. | 4.0 lbs. |
| Animal | 22.5 " | 0.4 " | 25.4 " |

A comparison of these figures would seem to be sufficient to prove the great superiority of the human over the animal excrements. But according to Lawes & Gilberts' estimate, the total amount produced by the adult, in one year, is—fæces, 95 lbs.; urine, 1,043 lbs.; total 1,144 lbs. Ninety five per cent of this is water, leaving only about 85 lbs. of dry substance available as fertilizers. Of the fæces, 1.2 lbs. is nitrogen, 7 lbs. phosphoric acid, and 24 lbs. potash. Of the urine, 10.8 lbs. potash. Most of the nitrogen and phos. acid of the fæces is insoluble, so that Harris estimates the nitrogen worth 15 cents and the phos. acid 5 cents per lb. These elements in the urine, being most soluble, are worth 20 cents and 12½ cents per lb. Potash is worth 10 cents. At these figures, the excrement of one person for one year, would be as follows: Nitrogen, $2.34; phos. acid, 28 cents; potash, 23 cents. Total, $2.85. In other words, a ton of this substance is worth but little more than $4 on the land. At 20 cents per lb. for nitrogen, 12½ cents for phos. acid, and 10 cents for potash, a ton of thoroughly rotted barnyard manure is worth more than the night soil, a ton of fresh swine manure is worth twice as much, and a ton of fresh hen manure three times as much. Thus we see that there is no "big bonanza" in night soil, as many have supposed.

There is considerable difference in the analyses of night soil as given by different authorities. Thus Lawes & Gilbert say that a ton of fresh urine contains 18 lbs. of nitrogen, while Wolf says 12 lbs. The editor of the Boston Journal of Chemistry declared that all the analyses given in the books are erronous, and that human excrement is far less valuable than that of animals, for fertilizing purposes. He accounts for this by the influence or requirements of the mind or intellect present in man but not in animals. The mind must be fed, and the more active it is, the more it requires, and as a consequence, the less valuable the excreta. This extra need of the mind is phosphoric and nitrogeneous, so that in these two most important elements of plant food human excrements are singularly deficient, and must therefore occupy a low place among fertilizing agents. This is an interesting view of the subject, and theoretically, appears to be the correct one.—Practical Farmer.

Controlling a Colt.

Restiveness is sometimes but rarely hereditary; more often arises from imperfect breaking; very frequently from being left, week after week, well fed in a loose box without exercise. It is quite impossible to say what will cure restiveness, but the first remedy to try is work. If the animal is old and confirmed in vice it requires the assistance of a master of arts in matters equstrian. But very often, if the first symptoms are checked, the cure will neither be long nor difficult. A gentleman who has been breeding and breaking horses for more than forty years always lunges his colts carefully, not brutally, before he puts them in harness the first time. They are kept standing and are driven in harness without vehicle attached, for several days before they are tackled to a brake. So, also, if a horse, after being idle, shows any signs of having forgotten his breaking lesson, he is first lunged backward until he sweats, then with a rider on him, and afterward his day's work in the middle of a cart team where he is not asked to draw many pounds. These are trifles, but it must be remembered that the very best horses the soonest become themselves. Many a first-rate animal, that would be pronounced by a timid driver or rider as dangerous when first mounted or driven, after being at Tattersall's from Friday to Monday, would be found a perfect joy and delight after two or three days' regular work. Magnificent animals are spoiled by over-feeding, want of exercise and brutal repression.

Feeding for Profit.

It is an undoubted fact that animals killed fat from flush pastures, are more juicy and consequently more palatable than animals fed fat on grain; but such animals will not do to ship, since they lose the juices of the meat first of all and so become hard and dry. For this reason cattle intended for shipment east, and especially those intended for European market, must be made fat on grain, and those weighing from 1,400 to 1,700 pounds are most profitable. With good breeding and good feeding from calf hood up, this may easily be obtained at three years past on steers. Hence the best feeders force their steers from the time they are calves until ready for market. They are never allowed to lose flesh, but are constantly kept going ahead. Feeding for market is yet understood in the United States by comparatively few feeders. It really costs less to make an animal that will weigh 1,400 at three years old, in the west, than to attain the same weight by grassing in the summer and starving in the winter. The careful feeder finds that it is to his advantage to feed in summer, except, perhaps, just when feed is most flush; in fact, some of our best feeders feed grain every day in the year, until the animal is sold, and find profit therein. The man who believes he can learn nothing from reading, fails to get the experience of others, and seldom makes money. Such men do not know that a difference of one or two cents per pound in an animal is just where the profit comes in. It should be borne in mind that if an animal gets thin, the whole fleshy structure must be rebuilt, and that waste goes on all the time. On the other hand, the animal kept constantly growing, gives off less daily waste than that which is thin. It is good feeding and good shelter that makes money in stock.—Prairie Farmer.

Admitting this to be a sound theory on feeding, the logical conclusion is that stock kept in comfortable, shaded lots and fed through the summer by carrying their feed to them, will improve much more rapidly than when they have to do the work of traveling after and gathering the food for themselves. The former mode is a great saving in food over the grazing system, and the larger number of stock that could be fed from the same extent of ground is also in favor of the soiling principle.

Fall Plowing.

We make the following extract from the New England Farmer on the the subject of fall plowing:

"Whether to plow in fall or spring is a question that has been discussed for many years, and will continue to be discussed for many years to come. It is one of those questions that is continually presenting itself, and must be answered in each case according to the peculiar circumstances attending it. As a general rule it may, perhaps, be safe to say, plow light sandy land in the spring, and heavy clays in the fall. Heavy clay land seems to require the alternate freezing and thawing of winter to pulverize and fit it for the next year's crop, while light land needs no pulverization. Sandy land will often lose much by blowing away when not covered by growing crops. Yet there are exceptions to this, as to all general rules. For a corn crop, it is thought by many that spring plowing is decidedly best on any land, providing the plowing is done late, just before planting, and the plow not allowed to run more than three or four inches deep. It is certainly a great mistake to plow heavy land in spring, whether old ground or sod, before it is dry enough to crumble and pulverise. If plowed while too wet it is rendered lumpy, and the lumps will remain unpulverized all summer. Wet land plowed in the fall will have the advantage of the winter freezing to pulverize the hard lumps, and this may be and probably is one reason why many farmers have supposed that fall plowing is always preferable."

Fattening Poultry for Market.

No fowl over two years old should be kept in the poultry yard, except for some special reason. An extra good mother, or a finely feathered bird that is desirable as a breeder, may be preserved until 10 years old with advantage, or at least so long as serviceable. But ordinary hens and cocks should be fattened at the end of the second year for market. When there is a room or shed that can be closed, the fowls may be confined there. The floor should be covered by two or three inches of fine sawdust, dry earth, sifted coal ashes, or clean sand. The food should be given four times a day, and clean water be always before the fowls. A dozen or more fowls may be put at once in this apartment, so that there may not be too many ready to sell at one time. The best food for rapid fattening, for producing well-flavored flesh and rich fat, is buckwheat meal, mixed with sweet skimmed milk, into a thick mush. A teaspoonful of salt should be stirred in the food for a dozen fowls. Two weeks' feeding is sufficient to fatten the fowls, when they should be shipped for sale without delay, and another lot put up for feeding. If the shed is kept dark and cool, as it should be, the fowls will fatten all the quicker for it.—Cultivator.

In January next a postage stamp of a new design is to be issued in Great Britain.

Grafting Vines.

The Germantown Telegraph reminds its readers that winter, and not spring, is the time for grafting their vines with others. This is owing to the fact that in the spring of the year there is such a tremendous pressure upwards by the ascending sap that the parts of the scion and stock which to unite must of course touch one another are forced by the sap apart. When the grafts are put in at this season there is little of this. The severed cells granulate and heal, and when the sap is ready to flow upward strongly, it goes up through its regular channels in the graft without any tendency to break out through the junction. The Telegraph recommends the operator to draw away the soil from the stock to be grafted, cut it down about two inches from the surface, then cut with a stout sharp knife a long and narrow wedge-shaped notch in the stock, and shape the scion as a wedge to fit in the notch in the stock. The lips of the notch are then tied together and the earth drawn in around the whole, leaving the upper eye of the graft above the ground.

It is very astonishing, adds the same authority, that grape grafting is not more generally practised, and especially since the discovery that the great success of the Concord, Clinton and a few other grapes is not owing to any extra constitutional hardness, but to the fact that the power to throw out numerous fibrous roots is greater in these kinds. If this be true, and it seems to be really the case, we may have the choicest and best of grapes by grafting them on these vigorous rooting stocks. For once the French seem to have taken a start ahead of us in this matter. They sent an agent to this country some years ago—a shrewd, observing fellow—and he took in the whole situation at once. The result has been that millions on millions of Concord and Clinton cuttings have been sent to France the past five or six years, and in the future the vineyards of that country may be brought to a higher grade of perfection than ever before.

An Economical Greenhouse.

In the spring Mrs. A. L. Jack gave to the Rural New Yorker an account of her experience with a sort of extemporaneous greenhouse:

"We had built this small lean-to at the south side of the kitchen, and opened a door from there into it. A small office stove, and the heat from the cooking stove, have been amply sufficient to keep therein an even temperature, as all the chips and small bits of wood were used in the daytime, and a fire of small coal put on about five o'clock in the afternoon in cold weather. The consequence has been that we have had fine, thrifty plants, and a constant succession of bloom, all winter, the Chinese primroses, geraniums and others of that kind doing well in a cool bin at a distance from the fire, while our heliotropes and calla lilies blossomed just above the fire, and a stand, all the length with five rows of shelves, gave extra heat and light to plants that needed them. Roses, red, yellow and white, the rich marechal niel, and the ruddy James Sprunt, with many other sorts, have been a delight to us in many ways, while we have enjoyed the pleasure of giving away bouquets during the long dreary winter.

"The door in the kitchen is always open except when that apartment is to be swept; then the door is carefully closed to exclude dust. It was a very pleasant bit of summer in which to work, or to sit with a book or a friend, and if one of the children seemed to need quiet, or complained of some slight ailment, the usual prescription has been to send the ailing one to our Italy, to sit in the sunshine that seemed to make summer all the time on that side of the house. All the girls and boys of the household own plants, and have enjoyed their blooming, while at the time of birthdays among themselves or their little neighbors, they have delighted in giving away a pretty blossoming plant."

Pulling on the Halter.

I advise your inquirer to let all kinds of fastenings alone that will hurt the horse or frighten him. The head is the proper place to tie him. Take a strap—double thickness, if necessary to make it strong enough—pass it over the top of the head and through the rings of the bit to a strong ring that will come just behind the chin, or fasten a tie-strap or chain or rope to it. Treat your horse kindly; tie him to what he cannot break from, after a long, hard ride or drive. As soon as he gets tired pulling and stops, untie him and take him to another place and tie him, and repeat it all day, and next day, if necessary. Patient perseverance, with repeated tying and change of place, has broken inveterate halter-breakers; but it is about as hard to cure as swearing, and requires the use of a strong strap and post for a long time. I am confident any horse can be cured in the way I speak of, and I speak from the experience of many years in training vicious horses. S.

---

If your correspondent, "Swift," will take a heavy leather strap, one and a half inches wide, put it around the neck of his horse, and attach to it a rope or leather halter—the latter the best—and pass this through the ring of the bit of the bridle or headstall, and then make his horse fast to a post, he can let him pull all he cares to; he cannot by any possibility get away; and a few preliminary chokings will cause him to stop pulling back. This is a very simple device and very effective; at least, we have found it so, as we have tried it. J. C. H.

Soil for Sugar Beets.

The N. England Farmer, speaking of soil for sugar beets, says: "The beet requires a deep, permeable soil, for its roots penetrate deeply into the ground and are abundantly supplied with fine fibres through which it receives its nourishment. If the soil does not permit the root to grow down freely the top will be forced to grow above the ground, and the crown which grows out of ground is nearly worthless for sugar purposes. A deep, sandy loam is the best soil to produce beets rich in sugar. They will, however, grow on a variety of soils, and any soil which will plow and subsoil to the depth of twelve or fifteen inches is a good beet soil. Avoid all wet lands and muck bottoms as unsuitable. Beets will not flourish upon wet lands, and what grow are not sweet. Muck bottoms produce large tops but small roots, with little sugar in them

A famous horse breeder of France has reared his stock for twenty years on a diet of parsnips instead of carrots and oats, with the result of "great vivacity of spirit and sleekness of coat." The yield of parsnips is about twelve tons per acre; the roots can remain safely in the ground, even during an extreme winter, it is said, and efforts are making to extend their cultivation for cattle and milch cows.

THE INDEPENDENT.

THE INDEPENDENT appeals to cultivated men and women. It discusses current questions of religion, philosophy, and politics. It is wide awake. It is not afraid. It sets people to thinking. It welcomes fresh truth. It has numerous departments. It publishes more religious discussion than the religious reviews, more poetry and stories than the popular monthlies, and gives more information than an annual encyclopedia. It has a larger corps of the most famous writers than any other journal of any sort in the country. It makes strong friends of those who read it. Try it for next year.

We have purchased the newspaper copyright of the Boston Monday Lectures for 1879-80, to be delivered, as heretofore, by the REV. JOSEPH COOK, beginning Nov 3d, and the same will be given verbatim to the readers of THE INDEPENDENT weekly, together with the Preludes, after revision by the author.

Sermons by Eminent Clergymen

in all parts of the country will continue to be printed.

PREMIUMS.

☞ We have decided to withdraw on the 31st day of December, 1879, all the premiums now offered by us to subscribers, a full list of which appears below; so that those who would avail themselves of our liberal offers must do so before December 31st, 1879.

WORCESTER'S UNABRIDGED Pictorial Quarto Dictionary.

Bound in Sheep. 1854 pages. Over 1,000 Illustrations. Issue of 1879.

Our contract with the publishers of the Dictionary expires Dec. 31st, 1879, and Messrs. J. B. Lippincott & Co. absolutely refuse to continue the contract beyond that date on the same favorable terms. We are, therefore, compelled to withdraw the Dictionary premium at the expiration of the present year; but we purpose give ample notice, so that our subscribers and the public in general may avail themselves of the surprisingly low terms to get the Dictionary, in connection with THE INDEPENDENT. We will send this Dictionary to any person who will send us the names of three new subscribers and Nine Dollars; or who will on renewing his own subscription, in advance, send us two new names additional and $9.00; or who will renew his own subscription for three years in advance, and send us $9.00; or, for a new subscriber for three years and $9.00.

The regular price of the Dictionary alone at all the book stores is $10.00, while the lowest price of three subscriptions is $9.00. Both the Dictionary and three subscriptions, under this extraordinary offer, can, therefore, be had together for only $9.00.

THE REV. JOSEPH COOK'S BOOKS,

entitled "BIOLOGY," "TRANSCENDENTALISM," "ORTHODOXY," "CONSCIENCE," "HEREDITY," and "MARRIAGE," embodying the author's previous remarkable Monday Lectures. They are published in handsome book form by James R. Osgood & Co., of Boston. We will mail a copy of either volume, postpaid, to any subscriber to THE INDEPENDENT who remits us $3.00 for a year in advance; or any subscriber may remit $5.50 and we will send him THE INDEPENDENT for two years in advance, and two volumes, postpaid; or any three volumes, postpaid, to any one subscriber who remits $8.00 for three years in advance.

Subscription price $3.00 per annum in advance, including any one of the following premiums:

ANY one volume of the HOUSEHOLD EDITION OF CHARLES DICKENS'S WORKS, bound in cloth, with 16 illustrations each, by Sol. Eytinge.

THE SUN FOR 1880.

THE SUN will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 it will be conducted as a newspaper, written in the English language and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is, the law controlling its daily make-up. It has now a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction of some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, The Sun believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is, and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party, class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save those which may be had by any purchaser with two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores nincompoops of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And The Sun makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which The Sun will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government which the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with corrupt, extravagant and insolent Administration intrenched at Washington.—The Sun did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentuous questions. The Sun will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the Constitution against all aggressors, The Sun is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage prepaid.

The Sunday edition of The Sun is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, post-paid.

The price of the Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1.00 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10.00 we will send an extra copy free. Address,

PROF. HARRIS' RADICAL CURE
FOR SPERMATORRHŒA.
—THE—
"SEMINAL PASTILLE."

A Valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and exerting its specific Influence on the Seminal Vesicles, Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostate Gland and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, it is quickly absorbed and soon absorbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organizations wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the system, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Dimness of Sight, Nervous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, Evil Forebodings, and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has stood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with bad effects, if any permanent good. There is no mystery about this preparation. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction.—During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered, of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble. It will be known to be the cause of untold misery to so many, and upon whom quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big fees. The Remedy is put up in a neat box, enough to last a month, and sent in a plain wrapper by mail, sealed, for $5.—Two boxes (usually best to effect a permanent cure unless in severe cases), $9—Three boxes (nothing above full months, (will fully guarantee and restore a cure), in the worst cases, $12—Full DIRECTIONS for using will accompany EACH BOX. Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, as if never effected. Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases, caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel, or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

FOR 1880.

NEW ATTRACTIONS.

A Pennsylvania Serial Story.

PRICE REDUCED
TO
$1.25 FOR SINGLE COPY,
OR
$1 IN CLUBS
OF TEN OR MORE.
(Including prepaid postage.)

In order to place the Weekly Press within the reach of the Republican voter of the State, the price has been reduced to one dollar and twenty-five cents for the year, by the single copy, or to one dollar for the year, by clubs.

The Press is thoroughly devoted to the principles of the Republican party, and maintains the Republican organization because it believes that the prosperity and progress of the people cannot be safely intrusted to any other existing political organization. During the year 1880, the most stupendous political conflict of this epoch will take place. Upon its issue will depend the political destiny of the country for many years.

The Press steadily resists the aims of the "Solid South," which is now organized to capture the Executive, to retain Congress, to remodel and control the Supreme Court, and to subordinate every public interest to the overmastering purpose of controlling the policy of the Nation, and thereby gaining by legislation and peaceful means what it lost on the field. The Press enforces the duty of preserving in full force the Constitutional Amendments made to secure the fruits of the war; upholds the right of every lawful voter to a free and unbought exercise of his right; inflexibly insists upon an honest return of the votes cast; justifies the use of all necessary means to prevent fraudulent voting and fraudulent returning of votes; accepts as fundamental the equal righ of every citizen to the adequate protection by the law of his political as well as his civil rights; maintains as wise the Republican policy of Resumption and honest financial legislation; defends as sound the policy of protection to American industry; and, in general, follows whithersoever the Republican principles lead.

Special measures have been taken to strengthen the paper in all its departments.

The Editorial Department will be in the hands of able and experienced writers, and the range of subjects discussed will be as wide as in any other first-class newspaper in the Union.

The Literary, the Agricultural, the Family and the Children's departments will remain in charge of experienced and able editors; and the Market Reports will be full and accurate.

Close attention will be given to the State news of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

Our Foreign Correspondence will include letters from Europe and all portions of the world.

A special feature of the Weekly Press will be a Serial Story in illustration of Frontier Life in Central Pennsylvania, prior to and during the Revolutionary War, in which John Brady and his sons John and Samuel, and other border celebrities will be prominently introduced. This story will be written by Mr. Charles McKnight, author of "Our Western Border," "Old Fort Du Quesne," and "Simon Girty," and will be begun about the middle of November.

☞ Special terms will be made with Canvassers.

☞ Specimen copies sent free on application.

☞ Parties sending $1.25 will be entitled to receive the paper from date till January 1, 1881.

—Where to go for dry goods—"Headquarters," the Bee Hive store.

—A woman's warranted shoe 98 cts. a pair, Men's boots $1.45, at Lyon & Co's.

—An immense stock of ladies' coats from $1.37½ up, at the Bee Hive store.

—Hunters' lies are now being recorded for reference on judgment day.

—A new telephone wire has been put up, embracing Mr. Ardell's office in its circuit.

—The best all wool cashmeres in town, 45 cents per yard, at the Bee Hive store.

—It is reported that Hi Henry's minstrels have "busted" and disbanded in disgust.

—Fine cashmeres, yard wide, all colors, 25 cents per yard, at the Bee Hive store.

—Lyon & Co., have just received a big lot of ladies' dolmans, of beaver and diagonal cloth.

—A new steam saw mill has been established near Spring Mills. It is reported as doing well.

—Which is the most and only reliable dry goods store in town? (Answer) The Bee Hive store.

—Brit. Steel has our thanks for a fine bunch of celery. You cannot beat Brit. in raising that delightful esculent.

—The small boy now buckles on his skates with glee and prepares for swimming under the thin ice. His mother's heart leaps with joy and is glad.

—As recommended by the Street Committee, at the last meeting of Council, two new sewers have been laid in Water street. Now for those lamps.

—Mr. Wm. Wincel, a Curtin township blacksmith, has lately completed a new and comfortable residence in which he has just established himself and family.

"Wae's me,wae's me," cries the gobbler in mournful tones, as he scans the gay and festive housewife preparing for to-morrow. His loss is not our gain. Alas!

—Centre Hall is happy. A five cent store is one of the latest additions to the town. Barnum's Hippodrome may now be expected to locate in that favored hamlet.

—The Clearfield Citizen has gone from bad to worse. It has abandoned the position of Rag-baby nurse, and is now suckled itself in turn from the Democratic bottle.

—Harry Green's cigars got a good "send off" at the late show. The gentlemen composing the troupe had the good sense to find out who had the best cigars in town.

—It gives us pain to record a visit from the impurtable Keichline whom "forty lickins will not cow nor threats unnumbered drive away." He went in peace; would it were in pieces!

—See notice elsewhere of dissolution of partnership of McClain & Cook formerly doing business in Milesburg. Wonder is Claude going to run for Congress, or going out west.

—The Hollidaysburg Register has battled with life successfully for forty-four years and still presents an unscarred front. It is the veteran paper of Blair county, and merits a semi-centennial birthday.

—So great has been the increase in Lawrence L. Brown's business, that he has been compelled to increase the facilties of his office for business, and workmen have begun on an addition to his place of doing business.

—Brit. Steel is very proud of that red mouse which he exhibited at the fair. He thinks it very intelligent and says it couldn't be bought for five dollars. He has been studying it physiologically and can tell some very curious things about it.

The Editor's Thanksgiving.

To-morrow all well minded persons will heed the recommendations of our State and national executives, and will lay aside their secular avocations, to join in rendering to the Almighty their thanks for blessings bestowed in the past year. No more beautiful custom exists among the American people; it is one of their distinguishing features. A truly noble sight it is to behold forty millions of people gathering together on one day to give thanks and praises to the Great Giver of all good for his kind and generous care over us all in the year that is past. A great majority of our people doubtless have much to fill their hearts with thankfulness; but still many there are who have seen more of sorrow than of joy, and have felt the hand of poverty laid heavily upon them. If they have their hearts filled with gratitude for their mercies, even under these circumstances, yet do they lack the means for an outward manifestation of their thankfulness. No well filled table, and no savory meats invite them to lay aside their cares and join in the general good-cheer of the day. It occurs to us that it were well and fitting for the more favored ones to make their thankfulness practical, to let their struggling neighbor, also, have cause for gratitude; to make the heart of some, at least, of God's poor to almost burst with joy at some unexpected and delicate token of friendship, aye, of true, of loving Christianity.

We have been speaking generally, but we would be definite, and go into particulars more for the benefit of those who purposely blunt their perceptions, who heed not the gentle hint. Reference is made to our profession, than which none labor longer and rack their brains more continiously for the end of accomplishing the thankless job of pandering to the public tastes, in holding up the right, and crying down the wrong. Some may still be of the opinion that all the members of the press have to do, is to sit in their sanctums, and turn the crank, while the mill turns out the matter; well, they are about right, but it is the printer who goes through the mill, and the public which remorselessly turns the crank.

Now the subject ever present to our minds is, "Wherewith shall we make our hearts glad on the morrow?" Of sentiment we have sufficient; it is the loaves and the fishes for which our souls cry out. And truly, it seems to us we may be permitted to advance our claims a little upon our friends. Our half a hundred visits in the year must have been fraught with some pleasure to many of our readers, as well as much profit to others. Notwithstanding that our efforts have been, as we hope, for good and not evil, our friends have not shown such appreciation of our labors as give us substantial means for celebrating Thanksgiving, whither we have the cause or not. Yes, reader, it is a painful truth, but it is the truth, we are illy prepared for to-morrow. Still, we would not appear as pensioners upon the public charity. It is not for this we cry out and vex our soul. Strange as it may appear to some, the printer in our estimation has his dues, as well as his supposed tutelary divinity, the king of darkness. Indeed, by their actions some would seem to betray a doubt whether the printer has or has not justly, any claims on the public for credit or cash. Still, whatever may be the public feelings in this particular, we still cling to our ideas as aforesaid, and we shall endeavor to educate our readers up to taking this view of the matter. But to your opinions now we do not appeal. To your sympathies, your liberality do we look for cause for lightheartedness upon the 27th. You can not do less than take down your account book and see if a little balance is not due your printer, and remit it ere the to-day leaves you. You may think it but little, but we do not despise the littles. Or perhaps a fine fat fowl may be running around, that would help on that unpaid subscription, and grace well our bare table. Think of this, reader, do a tardy justice to the newspaper man and give him cause to say to his soul on the morrow, "Eat, drink and be merry."

—Our esteemed contemporary, the talented associate of the Watchman evidently remembers how it was himself when he put forth his early efforts. We appreciate very highly his kind notice of our faint and youthful endeavor in the journalistic line. Thank you, Mr. Furey, and if we ever attain to the sprightliness which characterizes your writings, we will consider ourselves successful.

—If your means are limited, and still you want a first-class smoke, get some of Green's "Henry Clay" cigars They're not so big, but they're immensely good.

—A heavy double blanket for 89 cents at the Bee Hive store.

The Strangest Accident Yet.

One would suppose that when the wayfaring man goes out for a walk he is ordinarily free from danger, even if he carry with him such dangerous explosives as gunpowder and percussion caps, provided that he have the caps in a tight tin box, secluded in his vest pocket, and also that the powder be contained in a stout horn worn at his side. Reasonable as all this may appear, yet an accident occurred on last Thursday which would seem to disprove our hypothesis.

As an old gentleman, who came from Lewistown lately, Nicholas Gay by name,was laboriously and painfully making his way over the railroad used by Valentines & Co. he became very much unsettled as to his centre of gravity, the chief difficulty being that he was somewhat "how came you so," and when near the house of A. R. Agnew, opposite Lieb & Co.'s lumber yard, he made a tremendous tumble and fell flat upon the track. He was carrying with him a paper bag partly full, and besides a powder-horn and cap-box, both full, which he had arranged upon his person, as has been described. As he fell the neck of his powder-horn came in contact with the cap-box, puncturing the lid and exploding some of the caps. The bursting caps ignited the powder in the horn, and it exploded with tremendous force, blowing the horn to pieces, completely taking off the end of one of Mr. Gay's fingers and blackening the track for some distance around.

The old gentleman's clothes, which were of cotton, took fire and soon he was in a complete blaze. A. R. Agnew and Brit Steele, who were at hand, rushed to his assistance, and with considerable effort they at last succeeded in extinguishing the flames, though the palms of Mr. Agnew's hands were almost burnt to a crisp by his work. The old gentleman was burned about the arms and chest, but not seriously, and his hand was somewhat mangled; still, he was able to go without assistance to the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. Reesner, who lives on the Thomas farm. The injured man is doing well and will soon be recovered from his injuries. It is our opinion that this accident is without parallel for singularity.

Court Proceedings.

Up to the time of writing only a few cases have come up before the Court, and these are all of minor import:

Commonwealth vs. Aaron Orwig, assault and battery; dismissed with costs.

Commonwealth vs. Wm. Sanders, fornication and bartardy. Defendant plead guilty, and was fined $500 and costs.

Commonwealth vs. James and Irene Calderwood; verdict for defendant. Prosecutrix to pay the costs.

Thompson Reese vs. W. A. Kerlin, appeal from justice's court; verdict for defendant.

Wm. J. Keller vs. — Zimmerman, appeal from justice's court; verdict for defendent.

Wm. D. Glasgow, use of Silas Glasgow, vs. Nelson George, appeal from justice's court; verdict for plaintiff in sum of $73.62.

—Mrs. M. T. Wheeler, of Mansfield, Tioga county, this State, desires information of her husband, M. J. Wheeler, a printer, who left his home in Elmira, on the 25th of October. When last heard from he was in Olean. He was well dressed, wore a brown overcoat, either black or grey pants, a black Derby hat and drab gloves. He is about 26 years of age, nearly six feet tall, has light hair and mustache, a thin face and light complexion. He walks with a light, springy step, and carries his hands in the side pockets of his coat. He is believed to be partially insane. Any information concerning him will be thankfully received by his wife.—Democrat.

—Old Aeolus did not take kindly to Doc. Geissinger's new stiff "katy." During the blow on Sunday, he had the temerity to venture out, but before he had crossed the bridge, a gende zephyr lifted it from his noble brow and treated the new hat, purchased only the day before, to a very thorough bath. A youngster waded in and secured the fated plug, but only after it was thoroughly soaked and ruined. The doctor consequently had to stay at home that evening, and some fair maiden sat disconsolate.

—In order to accommodate their customers, Messrs. Williams & Bro. have now hung outside their paint shop a slate with pencil attached; so that all callers who may find the door locked, will, upon looking at the slate, learn the whereabouts of the painters, and upon the slate they may also leave their orders, which will be attended to promptly.

—Chest protectors at 50, 65 and 75cts. at Green's.

Council Proceedings.

We were unable to give a report of the proceedings of the last Council meeting, but we give them now, thinking that they will be of interest to our readers in town.

The Street Committee advised the repairing of the alley back of Linn street from F. P. Green's property to H. K. Hick's barn, and the construction of two new cross-street sewers. Power to act as they thought wise was given the committee and they are agreed to have the work done, as the expense will be small.

The Water Committee made an extended report through their chairman and submitted a draft of improvements at the Spring and reservoir, and estimates of their cost, by Civil Engineer Bruger. The tubular boiler, which has been unused since last May, had been examined and found to be in a very bad condition; 22 of the 53 tubes were loose and leaked badly.

Market Committee reported $5.30 market fees received from Thomas Shaughnessy, clerk.

The Fire and Police Committee said that 150 feet more hose were soon expected for the Logan company and that enough would soon be obtained to make the number of feet desired by the company. The Undines will be glad to learn that the committee has been authorized to purchase 600 feet of new hose for their company. Hose is rather an expensive article as it costs $1 per foot. But it must be had and the Council thinks our fireman deserve all they can do for them in this direction.

—Under the new regime the Bush House is daily assuming proportions of beauty within, and little niceties of improvement that add not a little to the attractiveness of the establishment. The office has been re-arranged, the desk being put at the farther end from the door, and its former place filled by a book-case and escritoire, which, with its well-filled shelves, strikes the eye very pleasantly. The reading room has also undergone a regenerating process: a carpet has been laid upon the floor and pretty flowers, among them an oleander-tree invites the passer-by to stop and linger. Appealing so strongly to the aesthetic tastes of man, as well as to his "inner man," we can not see how this house can be otherwise than successful.

—A large supply of porous and capsicum plasters fresh from the factory, just received at Green's.

—The Lewisburg, Centre & Spruce Creek Railroad has yielded up the ghost and submitted to the usual fate of side-show railroads. It is advertised to be sold on the 13th proximo when the Pennsylvania railroad will probably be the buyer. This will be good news, no doubt, to those dwelling along the line, in the north-eastern part of our county, for, with the strong hand of the Pennsylvania managing its affairs, the road will in all probability be pushed through and connected with lines this side of the Nittany mountain. Only in that way can it be made a paying route.

—A full line of hand made-knit goods at the Bee Hive store.

—In Boalsburg there is a band of hunters who are styled "The Modocs," and who prove themselves very sons of Nimrod. They recently went hunting in the Bear Meadows and returned with seven fine deer as their spoils. Another party from that place killed a large bear about the same time They report panthers plenty, which frighten and kill the deer.

—We are glad to receive the Democrat's correction of our slip of the pen in reporting the Anniversary proceedings of the Y. M. C. A.—that the $20 paid on the note of the Association was for principal, as well as interest. Only five dollars pays the interest, so that it can be seen no "gouge work" is done by the holder.

—Cashmeres all colors, 15 cents per yard, at the Bee Hive store.

—It is reported that ten or more gentlemen in Altoona have formed a joint-stock company, for the purpose of buying out the Altoona Sun, and starting a new daily in that city. Our fellow-townsman, Wm. P. Furey, will be the editor of the new journal, which will be an evening paper, and Democratic in its politics.

—A fine selection of hair, cloth, and tooth brushes, just received at Green's.

—The Watchman is responsible for the following: "A number of persons in Bellefonte, who have been buying lottery tickets and anticipating comfortable fortunes, have been sadly fooled." It sounds as if Joseph had been leaving a little experience of his own, of the true "inwardness" of a lottery's crookedness.

—The largest stock of floor oil cloths, for the old price, at the Bee Hive store.

Sheriff's Sales.

On Saturday and Monday the following sales were made by the sheriff: No. 2, property of Aaron Luckenbach, to Abram Hurst, for $890; No 3, (1st part), property of Thomas Rothrock, to W. C. Cress and H. C. Harvey, for $25; No 4, property of J. M. Thomson, to J. M. Keichline, for $51; No 5, property of G. W. Rumberger, to G. W. Rumberger for $1500; No 9, property of Joseph Sweysers, to Jos. Royer and D. B. Pletcher, for $1251; No 10, property of Levi Gearheart, to J. W. Gephart for $280; No 12, property of Wm. Askey, to J. C. and J. A. Harper and Wm. Tobias for $300; No 15, property of T. E. and Eliza Meek, to Millheim B. & L. Association for $50; No 17, property of J. M. Condo, to J. M. Keichline, for $25; No 18, property of James Glasgow, to J. L. Spangler for $100, No 21, property of Daniel Rishel, to C. M. Bower, for $1180. No 22, property of J. M. Alters, to D. H. Hastings and C. M. Bower, for $150; No 23, property of Jno. J. Steer, to H. A. and T. E. Griest, for $280.

The property of A. L. Winkleback was also sold to Henry Fidler for $250.

On Wednesday the following sales were made: No. —to A. Hoy for $310. No. 13 was indefinitely postponed. No. 24, property of Wm. A. Curry, to Wm. Wolf for $400. No. 16, property of Chas. Brown, to D. H. Hastings for $150.

The remainder of the sales were postponed until one o'clock to-day.

—Chemical black ink, best in the market, at Green's.

—From the Rockport, Ind., Banner. There is no medicine in the world which has gained such fame as St. Jacobs Oil; this is, however, not in the least astonishing, when we consider its truly wonderful curative powers. Mr. F. Rodenberg, of Grandview called at our office last week and related the following circumstances: I suffered with rheumatism for over six years; consulted many physicians and tried hundreds of remedies, but without avail. Having seen St. Jacobs Oil advertised in your paper, and heard of some most astonishing cures, I sent to Rockport for a bottle of the Oil, and used it according to directions. The relief I felt was almost "electric." I got better at once, and now there is not a trace of rheumatism left in my body.

—Try Green's quinine and glycerine hair tonic; it is an excellent article.

—Dr. Kirk must have found favor with Jack Frost's artist; for his street windows were covered last Saturday morning with beautiful frost work that drew from all observers exclamations of delight and admiration. One pane was penciled with a beautiful and true imitiation of the large southern fern-trees, while another presented to the eye what seemed to be crystalized sea-weed. Such specimens of fairy work we would love to linger on and keep with us; but assailed by the sun from outside, and by the doctor's good stove from within, our beautiful picture gradually faded from our vision, and stopped our castle building.

—For chaps, use "cocoa-camphorine."

—Be on your guard when changing money. A dangerous counterfeit twenty-dollar legal-tender note, issue of 1878, letter C, is in circulation. The line engraving is somewhat blurred; the words "Register of the Treasury," under Allison's signature, are crooked —almost a curve. Also the words "Treasurer of the United States," under the Treasurer's signature, are irregular. Hamilton's coat is dark and blurred. The inks and paper are almost perfect. It is a very dangerous bill, and made by a new process.

—The American plant bitters, are the best in the market. Sold at Green's.

—Mr. D. M. Lieb has been so successful in directing the affairs of the public school, that the Sunday-school folks of the Methodist church have invited him to assume the superintendency of their school, thinking his executive ability exhibited in the day school would be of advantage to them, Mr. Lieb has accepted, we are glad to say.

—From the weekly rehearsals going on, we are prepared to say that the entertainment to be held on Christmas night in Reynolds' Hall, will be one of the finest ever given in this community. Families wishing comfortable seats should secure them early, as they are already being engaged.

—A correspondent of the Watchman writing from Buffalo Run, gives an interesting account of a double wedding that took place at the house of Mr. Jonas Stone, of Buffalo Run. Mr. Wm. Lytle and Mrs. Elizabeth Lytzel formed one of the contracting couples, Mr. Wm. Sellers and Miss Katie Stein making up the other.

—The College "Sophs" have a hard time of it, indeed. They have to fight it alone against all the other classes, "preps" and girls combined. One of them paid us a visit last Saturday, and though he looked careworn and begrimed with the smoke of battle, he announced the determination of his class to grit their teeth and fight it out, if it takes all winter. Evidently the chip is still on that fair youth's shoulder, and it will take a girl to knock it off. The difficulty seems to arise from a lack of fair ones in that vicinity. How would it do to import a few maidens from Bellefonte (lots of them here) to pour oil on the troubled waters?

—Notwithstanding the efforts of both Watchman and Democrat to accomplish the decease of Mrs. Keller, the unfortunate victim of that upsetting accident last Friday a week, we beg leave to inform the sympathizing public that the estimable lady is still in the land of the living, aye, more, she was by a living witness seen becoming as sprightly as ever, no longer ago than Friday afternoon, a week after the accident. The next time the two papers named are filled with longings to pen an obituary, they must seek for a subject somebody less hardy and tenacious of life than Mrs. Keller.

—Something new for smokers! The Stephania Patent Cigarette. The beauty of this novelty in smokers' materials is that every cigarette is furnished with a crystal mouth-piece, which enables the cigarette to be entirely smoked, does away with getting the bits of cigarette in the mouth, keeps the lips and fingers from being burned, prevents the nicotine from being inhaled, and together with the use of rice paper keeps the taste of paper out of the tobacco. Try these cigarettes once and you will never go back to the old kind. They only cost 25 cents a box. Sold by Harry Green.

—We are agents for Sawyer's Woolen Mills; and also for Kipper's foreign woolens. The finest fabrics. All wool suits to order, Twelve and one-half Dollars.

The Markets.

Nov. 25th, 1879.

Saturday last was a field day for farmers in Bellefonte. The former filled the stores to overflowing, and we trust buyer and seller profited by their transactions.

GRAIN.—The wheat market is firm at our quotations; but the deliveries are light. Farmers seem disposed to hold for future prices, concerning which we have no opinion to advance for the present. Rye is a matter of very little importance in our market.

CORN.—There has been some small sales of cob corn at our quotations, but we hear of our mills being supplied from the West with shelled at sea board prices. Oats are taken readily when offered.

At Philadelphia wheat was in better demand, and prices were one cent higher; 10,000 bushels sold, in lots, including Pennsylvania red at $1.42; southern red at $1.42; Pennsylvania and southern amber at $1.43@1.44; southern and western white at $1.43@1.44; ₱ bushel, as to quality. Rye—There was very little movement. Small sales at 88c ₱ bushel. Corn was firm; 12,000 bushels sold in lots at 56c for rejected and steamer, and 57@58c ₱ bushel for sail mixed and yellow; new yellow at 53@54c; new western mixed 53@54c, and new white 50c ₱ bushel. Oats were in demand. About 7500 bushels sold in lots at 42@45c for white, and 40@41½c for mixed, and choice white at 46c.

First call—At the open board corn was in fair demand and prices were rather firmer.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Apples are selling on the streets at fifty cents, and retailing from stores at sixty cents per bushel.

BEEF seems to be scarce by the quarter and side, for which we have no fixed quotations.

PORK is starting off very low—four cents per pound by the hog.

SEEDS.

AT PHILADELPHIA the offerings of Cloverseed have fallen off, and the demand is limited. Several sales of medium at 9@9¼c, and choice at 9½c. Flaxseed is quoted at $1 52@1 55 ₱ bushel.

AT DETROIT Cloverseed was steady; prime at $5 25; choice at $5 60.

AT TOLEDO Cloverseed, mammoth, at $5 30 prime at $5 20; No. 2 at $4 90.
